AFTERTHOUGHT PROMOTER HAS SURRENDERED

Bond for Theodore S. Henderson Is Fixed at $3000 After He Is Given Up to the United States Marshals by His Attorney.

FRAUDULENT USE OF MAILS CHARGED

Officers Had Watched at Hospital Where Daughter Is Ill; Notice of Assessment Is Base of Direct Accusation of Warrant.

Theodore S. Henderson, vice-president and promoter of the Afterthought Copper Co. and the Great Western Gold Co., surrendered at 11:30 a. m. Saturday to Deputy United Marshals J. J. Williams and E. E. Whitworth, who held a capias for his arrest on a charge of using the United States mails to defraud. Henderson was delivered to the Federal authorities by Attorney Thomas T. Fauntleroy.

This was the first step toward criminal prosecution of Henderson, the previous action having been a civil suit for a receiver.

Henderson was released on a $3000 bond signed by Julius Abeles and F. A. Schuermann. The hearing was set for next Saturday.

United States District Attorney Daues refused to accept A. R. Fleming as one of the sureties on the ground that Fleming had been interested with Henderson in three companies. Fleming then left to procure a bondsman. Julius Abeles was ready to sign the bond, provided there was another surety.

Has Ear to the Ground.

Walter S. Mayer, chief Postoffice Inspector for St. Louis, said after the arrest of Henderson:

"I have my ear to the ground and as fast as I can get the evidence against wild cat mining promoters arrests will be made. Credit for this arrest belongs to William A. Rose and J. S Swenson, inspectors in this office.

"St. Louis will be a whole lot cleaner when the present campaign against such mining ventures is finished."

While the bond of Henderson was being discussed it developed that several other arrests are expected within a few days.

Friday night Deputy Marshals J. H. Williams and E. E. Whitworth went to St. John's Hospital, where Miss Evelyn Henderson is a patient, having been taken ill after the death of her mother a few days ago. The officers supposed that Henderson would call during the evening to see his daughter. They arrived at 5 o'clock and remained until 1. D. G. Gibson of Webster Groves was there and during the evening there was a telephone call for Miss Henderson. She left the room to answer it and the supposition is it was from her father and that she told him the officers were there waiting to arrest him.

Notice of Assessment.

The affidavit upon which a capias was secured for Henderson is signed by William O. Rose, a Postoffice inspector, and based on transactions by mail between Henderson and Mrs. Ida Burrell. It recites that over the signature of "Bush & Hall, per C." a letter to Mrs. Birrell was written Aug. 12 last notifying her that an assessment had been made on her stock to pay liabilities of the company and also to build a railroad.

It is alleged in the affidavit that there was no intention on the part of Henderson to use the money for either of these purposes but that it was to be converted to his own use.

DOLAN POLICE FUND CASE IS GIVEN TO THE JURY

The case of Patrolman Timothy J. Dolan, accused of embezzlement from the police relief fund, went to the jury at 11:45 a. m. Saturday, the final testimony and arguments having taken place during the morning.

Character witnesses introduced in Dolan's behalf Friday afternoon were the Rev. Father Timothy Dempsey, Capt. O'Malley and former Lieut. McCormack, who was dismissed from the force by the Police Board as a result of the relief fund disclosures.

Circuit Attorney Jones, in prosecuting Dolan, has endeavored to keep John M. Healy, the indicted former secretary of the association, out of the case. Attorney Rowe, in the defense, sought to show that Healy was trying to incriminate Dolan and others to save himself.

GIVES $3,000,000 AND ADVICE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The will of David Kolm, a wealthy real estate man who died in Italy a few weeks ago, has been filed for probate here. The bulk of his $3,000,000 estate is left to his daughter Edith, and the bequest is accompanied by the following paragraph of advice as to the use of his money:

"Be saving and take very little risk. Lend no money to others, and don't indorse for others, for my experience in this respect has been unfortunate. Rather give what you can afford, and let it go at that."

TWENTY FLEE FROM GASOLINE TANK EXPLOSION

One Policeman and Several Pedestrians Are Injured as a Result of the Blowing Up of Lighting Apparatus in Rear of a Poolroom at 921 Pine Street.

WOMEN ARE HURT BY A SHOWER OF GLASS

Owner Tried to Beat Out the Fire, Originating From a Leaking Supply Pipe and Then Ran From Building, Which Was Damaged.

Several pedestrians and a policeman were hurt and 20 men fled for their lives when an explosion of gasoline wrecked the fronts of 921 and 923 Pine street, two-story brick buildings, Saturday.

The explosion occurred in the rear of a pool room at 921, conducted by James Anaganostaras and John Kireilion.

For economy they kept a large tank of gasoline to supply lights for the poolroom.

The building adjoining the poolroom was occupied by the Bell Telephone Co. as an equipment storage house and a school for linemen and mechanics.

School Is Upset.

Twenty pupils were receiving instructions there when the explosion occurred.

Patrolman William Curran was passing the poolroom and when he saw flames in the rear part of the building and heard a rumbling noise, he ran to the corner and turned in a fire alarm.

Returning to the building, he was in front of it and about to force an entrance, when all of the windows and doors were blown into the street.

His face and hands were cut by flying glass. Several pedestrians, two of them women, were also caught in the shower of glass and some were cut. When the smoke had cleared they were gone and they did not apply at the dispensary for treatment.

Anagnostaras was generating gasoline vapor for his lighting plant when a leak in one of the pipes caused the explosive fluid to become ignited. After trying to beat out the fire with towels he fled and escaped injury.

John Krauiman, one of the Bell Telephone pupils, was cut on the neck by flying glass.

W. L. Farrell and L. F. Filbert, employes in charge of the telephone company's school and storeroom, say that they tried to telephone the fire department and the company's main office but could not get connection.

The damage to the Bell Telephone Co.'s stock is estimated at $2000, to the poolroom stock $5000 and to the building $1000.

Fire followed the explosion, but the flames were quickly checked

DEATH NOTICE FOR A DOG

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Gratitude for a dog's company during 10 years was expressed in an advertisement in papers here by its owners, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Ham. The animal met its death yesterday in an accident, and the tribute reads:

"Always a sympathetic friend and loving companion. His 10 years of life were full of sweetness, gentleness, loyalty and affection."

Still another big victory

After completely swamping its competitors in the volume of local merchants' display advertising carried on Tuesday and Thursday of this week, the POST-DISPATCH repeated this performance yesterday, Friday, by again beating the Globe-Democrat, Republic and Times, combined, duplicating the figures of last Thursday, which were

Globe-Democrat, Republic and Times added together . . 83 columns

We repeat—there is no other metropolitan newspaper in the United States that so completely outclasses its competitors in the volume of local business carried as does the POST-DISPATCH in St. Louis.

The POST-DISPATCH is profitable to advertisers because it reaches the people they want to reach.

The only policy holder who doesn't need to pay his premiums is dead. The only man who doesn't need to advertise is the man who has retired from business.

The public judges the merchant's faith in his goods by the publicity he gives them.

MARS' PROPELLER IS BROKEN; FLIGHT FROM SHIP IS OFF

Accident Causes Postponement of Attempt to Carry Mail From Ship at Sea.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Owing to a slight accident to one of the propellor blades of the Curtiss biplane in which J. C. ("Bud") Mars was scheduled to make the first ship-to-shore journey in the history of aviation, the elaborate plans that had been making for the flight during the past fortnight went by the board.

The accident occurred a few minutes after the Hamburg-American liner Pennsylvania had left her Hoboken pier with Mars, his employer, Glenn Curtiss, and Augustus Post on board. The superstructure on the liner had been pronounced entirely satisfactory by Curtiss, Mars, Grahame-White, Harmon and Post. The black varnished biplane and her cradle had appeared fit as a sable cormorant to take the air. Her motors had had a preliminary test and worked perfectly. She was pronounced in splendid tune for the trial.

There was a stiff breeze blowing and a black snow squall over the Hudson, but this did not dismay the little birdman. Curtiss said it would be a daring feat, but predicted success. Then, as the Pennsylvania sloughed out into the river, Curtiss essayed another test of the motor.

But the propeller had hardly begun to turn when there was a sharp, ripping sound. The power was shut off and an examination made. It was found that a piece of rubber piping, which had been left on the right-hand plane near the propeller, had been sucked against one of the propeller blades, splintering its edges. The blade was only slightly damaged, but the injury was serious enough to add another grave peril to the enterprise.

Curtiss gave the signal that the flight was off and word was sent to Capt. Rus, who at once put back into the pier, so that the superstructure and the aeroplane could be taken off. Curtiss said that it would not be possible to replace the damaged propeller for several days.

When the flight was abandoned, blue flags bearing white crosses were flying from the World building dome, from the Singer tower, the Hotel Astor and the White Hall building, announcing that conditions were favorable and that the departure in aviation would be made.

A small fleet of tugs and the World yacht, Wild Duck, had set out from Hoboken an hour before to run out along the route, to be followed by the Pennsylvania. The yacht Wild Duck carried a distinguished party of aviators, army and navy officers.

LAFE YOUNG MADE IOWA SENATOR TO SUCCEED DOLLIVER

Gov. Carroll Names Owner of Des Moines Capital and Friend of Taft.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Io., Nov. 12.—Lafe Young Sr., was appointed United States Senator at noon today by Gov. Carroll, to succeed the late Senator J. P. Dolliver. Young will serve until his successor is selected by the Legislature.

When the General Assembly convenes, Jan. 3, it is reported Gov. Carroll will recommend the calling of a special primary election to submit the choice to a vote of the people. It will require 40 days to bring such a primary and Young would serve during that time. He may be a candidate at the primary to succeed himself, although he has not committed himself on this point.

Senator Young is a native Iowan, born in this State in 1846. Most of his life he has devoted to the newspaper profession. Last spring he celebrated his twentieth year as owner of the Des Moines Daily Capital, one of the leading newspapers of the Middle West. In politics, Col. Young has vigorously supported the administration of President Taft. He has been a stanch supporter of Gov. Carroll.

Senator Young has a national reputation as an orator. In 1900, at the Philadelphia Republican convention, he nominated Theodore Roosevelt for Vice-President. He has been twice delegate-at-large to the Republican convention from Iowa. He accompanied President Taft on his trip to the Philippines some years ago and is a personal friend of the President.

FISHBALLS ON LUXURY LIST

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 12.—Fishballs will soon be a luxury if the present scarcity of dry fish continues. The supply is more limited than it has been for 25 years and the price is continually soaring.

Local dealers are unable to fill a large number of orders from the West. The ravages of the dogfish and the abnormally heavy demand resulting from the high price of meat are the main reasons.

HARVARD MAKES A TOUCHDOWN IN OPENING QUARTER

Scores on Dartmouth After Wigglesworth Makes a 25-Yard Run.

By Wire Direct From Soldiers' Field.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—Harvard's last game of the season on its own grounds brought out a great crowd today, with Dartmouth as the enemy. The Crimson was especially anxious to win this contest, for on next Saturday it ends the season with Yale at New Haven.

Harvard scored six in the first quarter, Corbett taking the ball over for a touchdown after Wigglesworth, on a quarterback run through center, had made 25 yards.

The Kick-Off.

Withington kicked off for Harvard, the ball landing on the 10-yard line. Barends punted on the first down, the ball landing on the Harvard 35-yard line. Wigglesworth made five yards on the run. On an end-run Corbett gathered up 27 yards, the ball landing on Dartsmouth's 52-yard line. Morrison went through the line for three yards. Captell went through for four more yards on the third down.

Wigglesworth punted. The ball was recovered by Ryan on Dartmouth's three-yard line. Barends punted to his own 39-yard line, where Wigglesworth made a fair catch. Capt. Withington attempted a place kick, which he missed. Barends on his own 25-yard line kicked to Wigglesworth on Harvard's 37-yard line, where he was downed in his tracks. On two line plays Harvard gained six yards and then Minot punted to Dartmouth's 25-yard line.

Barends punted on the first down to Harvard's 45-yard line. On a quarterback run Wigglesworth ran five yards. Minot punted to Dartsmouth's 25-yard line. Barends returned the punt to Harvard's 42-yard line. Campbell made a yard through the line. Minot punted to Dartmouth's 37-yard line and Ingersoll was downed in his tracks. Ingersoll punted to Harvard's 37-yard line and Corbett ran the ball back four yards, being downed by Capt. Ryan.

MRS. MARGARET KAISER, NOTED LOCAL BRIDGE PLAYER DIES

Mrs. Margaret M. Kaiser, who since her husband's death had been president of the Ferd P. Kaiser Publishing Co., and had managed its large business successfully, died at St. Luke's Hospital Friday afternoon. Intestinal trouble was the cause of death.

Mrs. Kaiser was 57 years old. Her husband, the founder of the publishing business, died three years ago. Two sons and two daughters survive her. The family home is at 4584 West Pine boulevard.

Mrs. Kaiser was a bridge whist player of local note, and had won trophies in contests here and in the East. The funeral will be held at 3 p. m. Sunday from the residence. Mrs. Kaiser had been ill for several months.

PRINCETON SCORES 3 POINTS ON YALE IN FIRST QUARTER

Ballou Makes a Field Goal From Placement---Neither Team Scores in Second Quarter.

GAME IS FOUGHT OUT IN A HEAVY FALL OF SNOW

Bulldog Finds Tiger Line a Stone Wall, and After Trying Tricks and Forward Passes Goes to Defensive---Yale Penalized Frequently.

By Wire Direct from Princeton Field.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12.—Yale scored a touchdown on Princeton in the second half.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12.—In the first real snowstorm of the season the ancient football enemies, Yale and Princeton, fought it out today before an immense crowd, muffled in furs and bearskins. Princeton scored first, when Ballou sent a field goal from placement. The first quarter ended with the score 3 to 0 in the Tigers' favor.

The teams lined up as follows:

Princeton.	Position	Yale.
Dunlap	L. E.	Kilpatrick
McGregor	L. T.	Scully
McCormick	L. G.	Fuller
Blumenthal	C.	Morris
White	R. E.	Brooks
Brown	R. T.	Paul
Wilson	R. G.	McBevitt
Ballou	Q. B.	Howe
Sparks	L. H. B.	Field
Pendleton	R. H. B.	Daly (Capt.)
Hart (Capt.)	F. B.	Kistler

Ballou kicked off for Princeton. Daley caught the ball on Yale's 15-yard line and ran it back 20 yards. Daley's ability to dodge the Tigers' ends brought a big cheer from the Yale side of the field. The Yale coaches evidently had decided on a line attack, and Kistler was sent through left tackle for one yard. They then tried the other side of the line, but without avail.

Yale then dropped back as if to try a punt, but Howe ran around the end instead and gained 15 yards. Daley also tried an end run, but fumbled and Princeton fell on the ball.

Princeton Fails to Gain.

Princeton also failed to gain and Ballou punted to Princeton's 45-yard line. When Yale got the ball they switched their tactics and tried a forward pass. Ballou intercepted the throw and Princeton had the ball on their own 45-yard line.

Ballou immediately sent a long kick whirling to Yale's 20-yard line. Kistler fumbled the ball and White fell on it. The Princeton rooters went crazy with joy when Ballou dropped back and sent a field goal from placement squarely between the Yale posts. Princeton had drawn first blood and the score now stood 3 to 0 in favor of the Tigers.

On the kick-off, Princeton got the ball on their own 25-yard line. Ballou attempted a kick, but the kick was blocked and Brooks fell on the ball on Princeton's 20-yard line. Yale attempted a kick from placement, but the pass was high and Kistler was tackled back of the line for a loss of 15 yards. That gave the ball to Princeton.

The Tigers failed to gain on the first try and Ballou booted the ball to Yale's 45-yard line. Howe immediately punted the ball back to Pendleton on Princeton's 25-yard line, and just as Princeton lined up for an attack the first quarter was over. Score: Princeton, 3; Yale, 0.

Second Quarter.

When the second quarter began Ballou punted the ball to Dale on Yale's 40-yard line. A snowstorm had come up and the battle now waged in the snow. Daley took a crack at left tackle for eight yards and Field went through for 15 yards, but was brought back on account of holding.

Field went around right end three yards. Ellsworth went in right tackle for Princeton. Howe punted to Pendleton, who made a long gain, but was penalized for holding and the ball was taken back to Princeton's 15-yard line. Princeton then kicked to center of the field, where Yale got the ball.

Kistler tore off seven yards on a straight plunge through center and on a fake kick gained two more. It did not count, however, as Yale was penalized 15 yards for foul play. Howe punted to Pendleton on Princeton's 25-yard line, but Yale was penalized 25 yards for interfering with a fair catch. Princeton immediately kicked the ball out of danger and Yale got it on her 30-yard line. Field then went around right end for five yards.

Ellsworth tackled Howe back of the line for the next play and Yale lost three yards. Howe attempted to punt, but fumbled the ball and was tackled back of the line.

Place Kick a Failure.

Howe punted out of bounds. Pendleton got the ball on Yale's 50-yard line. Ballou tried a long side tackle and the ball went rolling to Yale's five-yard line, where Kistler fell on it. Deming went in for Kistler as fullback for Yale. Yale punted the ball out of danger, but Howe's kick was bad and Princeton got the ball on Yale's 35-yard line. The Tigers then tried for another place kick, but Bluthenthal made a bad pass and Pendleton's kick fell short of the goal.

Yale kicked the ball back to Princeton in the middle of the field. Princeton gained 10 yards on a forward pass and then kicked the ball to Yale on the Blue's 30-yard line. Yale was fighting on the defensive now and the half ended with the ball on Yale's 35-yard line and the score at the end of the half stood as it did at the end of the first quarter—Princeton 3, Yale 0.

WERREMEYER WEDS EARLY CALLERS IN 25 SEC. FLAT

St. Louisans in Automobile Disturb Poetic Magistrate's Breakfast.

Poetic Justice Werremeyer's telephone at Olivette, St. Louis County, jingled at 8 a. m. Saturday.

A sweet feminine voice at the other end of the line said:

"Won't you come to Clayton and marry me right away?"

"I can't," replied Werremeyer. "My wife won't let me."

"I don't mean that. The young man I'm going to marry is with me and we're in an awful hurry."

Justice Werremeyer, in his buggy, made fast time to Clayton. In front of his office he found a big touring car, and inside were a young woman and a young man.

They said they were William H. Comford and Marie F. Ross, both of St. Louis, but gave no street address.

"Make the ceremony short," said Comford.

There was so little time that Werremeyer did not drop into poetry. He consumed just 25 seconds in making Comford and Miss Ross man and wife.

After the ceremony they ran down the court house walk, jumped into the automobile and drove away toward St. Louis. Comford's name does not appear in the city directory.

AUTOMOBILE FUNERAL FOR MAN KILLED ON MOTORCYCLE

Racing Sign "Good-By, Boys" Had Different Meaning for Mourning Friends.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 12.—Twenty automobiles, 25 motorcycles, a motor hearse and an open automobile truck carrying pallbearers and flowers, made up the funeral cortege here yesterday for Walter Lindel, a motorcyclist, who was killed Wednesday in a collision with a tombstone wagon.

Across the street from the undertaker's chapel, where the procession started, is a motorcycle shop. In front of it leaning against the curb as the cortege passed stood Lindel's damaged machine. On the rear fender of it hung the sign: "Good-by, boys."

It had been intended as a notice to any motorcyclist who might attempt to keep up with Lindel in the race which led to his death. It had a different meaning to the funeral party.

287 VOTERS IN PRECINCT; 307 VOTES COUNTED

Tally Sheets Were Not Used in First Precinct, Twelfth Ward.

DEMOCRAT OBJECTED

Watcher Declares He Complained and the Enlarged Figures Were Reduced.

The canvass of the ballots in the office of the Board of Election Commissioners Saturday developed that although only 287 persons received ballots to vote in the first precinct of the Twelfth Ward, 307 votes were counted on the outer park amendment. The tally sheets which the law requires the judges and clerks to keep, were not kept in this precinct and were returned blank.

Chairman Shannon of the Democratic State Committee announced Saturday that he would take before the grand jury the name of judges and clerks in precincts where irregularities were found, and that he would endeavor to obtain indictments for negligence, or in case of evidence of fraud, he would ask indictments under the fraud statute.

Statements of the election officials in the Tenth precinct of the Tenth Ward, showed that erasures had been made, and that the vote of every Republican candidate had been increased 100 votes. The erasures showed that the vote had been changed by deducting 100 votes from each candidate's total, making the return correspond with the tally sheet.

This precinct was examined on demand of John Ellspermann Jr., one of the Democratic watchers. When examined, the statements showed that the average vote for each Republican candidate was 270, but that a return had originally been made 100 in excess of that, and that 100 votes had been added to the total against each amendment.

Chairman Shannon of the Democratic State Committee charged before the board that at midnight election day the Democratic judge had left the polling place for a few minutes, and that when he returned the Republican vote was 100 in excess of what he thought it ought to be. He demanded a recount, Shannon charged, and the Republican officials refused to grant the recount, but consented to reduce the Republican vote and the vote against the amendments 100.

The polling place in this precinct was in the rear of John Pfeifer's saloon, Cherokee street and Indiana avenue.

The Election Commissioners, over the protest of representatves of the Democratic State Committee, refused to permit the watchers at the canvass to scrutinize the tally sheets of each precinct and compare them with the statements of the election officials.

The board ruled that the watchers could refer to the board each precinct in which they alleged there had been fraud and that the board would pass on each case.

Chairman Shannon of the Democratic State Committee insisted fraud would be more apparent from the comparison of the tally sheets with the officials' statements.

Discrepancies Found.

At noon Saturday the watchers had seen only the returns on the first two constitutional amendments for the First Precinct of the First Ward. The poll books showed that 293 ballots had been given to voters; the judges' statements showed 293 ballots had been counted and two rejected, showing two more ballots in the boxes than were given out.

On the second amendment, the statements of two judges showed 64 votes for, 280 against and 10 not voting on the amendment. This made 354 ballots cast, while the registration in the precinct is only 354. The third statement showed the same number for the amendment and not voting, but only 208 against. The tally sheet recorded 218 votes against the amendment. The different statements disclosed discrepancies in the vote on this amendment.

Shannon Asks Investigation.

Shannon made the following formal statement to the board:

On behalf of the Democratic candidates for State offices, I believe gross frauds appear in the returns, and I suspect it to such an extent that I believe fraud was committed in every precinct in St. Louis. I request, on behalf of the candidates, that in making up your abstract a thorough investigation be made and that there be a comparison of the officials' statements with the tally sheets in each precinct. Anything less than this is an inadequate investigation.

Chairman Kortjohn replied that the board could legally examine the tally sheets only when there was an indication that a change had been made in the returns, or when good reason existed to believe fraud had been committed.

PART OF CAIRO POSSE GIVES UP HUNT FOR NEGRO

He Is Accused of Having Stolen a Pocketbook From a White Woman.

CAIRO, Ill., Nov. 12.—The posse from Mounds, eight miles north of here, which began a hunt for an unidentified negro last night, was unsuccessful. Several of the negro's pursuers returned to Mounds this morning. Others are still searching the woods.

The negro is said to have robbed Mrs. Robert Camp of her purse as she stepped from a train at Mounds.

IT ACTUALLY HAS HAPPENED.

ONE POLICEMAN'S HEAD, ANOTHER'S FEET, INTOXICATED

Medicine Prescribed by Doctors Results in Partial Inebriation.

Medicine prescribed for Patrolman Michael M. Lyons went to his head while that taken by Patrolman George L. Cradick went to his feet. Lyons became befuddled, but he walked straight. Cradick staggered while his mind remained clear. Lyons took his medicine for indigestion and Cradick took his for chills and fever. Both were charged with being intoxicated and both submitted samples of their medicine for inspection by the Police Commissioners.

Capt. Martin O'Brien of the Mounted District testified that he saw Cradick navigating unsteadily along the granitoid walk in front of the Forest Park Police Station and suspended him.

"He spoke in a rational manner and seemed to have perfect control of his wits, but he could not walk straight," said the captain.

He Produces the Evidence.

Cradick then produced his medicine. It was a brownish liquid in a four-ounce bottle.

"That is a chill tonic which was prescribed for me by Dr. Carruthers," he said. "It consists of whisky, glycerine, quinine and iron."

"How much whisky and how much glycerine?" asked President Woerheide.

"Half and half," said Cradick.

Cradick explained he had lost several hours of sleep and had probably taken an overdose of the medicine. He was dismissed from the force.

Lyons, who was represented by L. C. Dyer, Congressman-elect, was dazed when Sergt. Burke found him leaning against a fence at Grand and Chouteau avenues a week ago, according to the testimony. He was taken to the Magnolia Avenue Station and there put through a test for sobriety. The witnesses said he walked all right, but he appeared to be stupid and he consumed one hour and a half in making a written report about his condition.

More Brownish Liquid.

When Lyons began his defense he drew from his pocket a small bottle containing a brownish liquid.

"I have been taking medicine for indigestion," he said. "It may have gone to my head but I was not under the influence of liquor."

As they had done in the case of Cradick, the commissioners smelled the medicine and gazed at it against the light. Then they shook their heads in bewilderment.

"It's a tonic," said Lyons, "and is used for a stimulating purpose."

"I see," said President Woerheide.

There was much conflicting testimony in the case of Lyons, though, and the board took the matter under advisement until next meeting.

Patrolman David Powers, charged with intoxication, did not appear for trial. He was dismissed from the force.

NATIONAL GUARDSMAN SLAIN

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 12.—Moses Fairfax, a private in the Ninth Battalion Ohio National Guard, was fatally stabbed last night with a bayonet by one of four comrades who were on drill duty with him. He died an hour later.

The stabbing occurred in the street opposite the central armory and was the sequence to a quarrel as to who had paid for a round of drinks.

HUSBAND LOVED CLUBS, NOT HOME, SAYS MRS. GAMER

Daughter of A. Moll Asks Divorce and Custody of Her Three Children.

That her husband spent most of his evenings at the clubs to which he belonged is the principal allegation in the divorce suit filed Saturday by Mrs. Haidee M. Gamer against E. W. George Gamer.

Mrs. Gamer is a daughter of the late Adolph Moll, founder of the A. Moll Grocery Co., and with her three children she now lives at the home of her mother, 4530 Berlin avenue. Gamer's home is in Chicago.

The Gamers were married March 18, 1898 and separated Nov. 7, 1909.

Mrs. Gamer alleges that her husband's habit of preferring clubs to home life so worried her that she had nervous prostration and went to a sanitarium.

When she found it impossible to win back the attentions which she believed her husband should show to his home she went to her mother. She asks the custody of the children, Adolph, 11 years old; Edward, 8, and Haidee Anna, 4.

BALLET BOXES TO BE OPENED

Democratic Candidate's Lawyer Will Resist Decision.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 12.—The Board of County Commissioners of Douglas County today decided to grant the demand of A. L. Sutton, Republican candidate for Congress for the Second Nebraska District, who was defeated on the face of the returns by about 300 votes, that the voting machines used in Omaha be opened and a recount had.

County Attorney English advised the board that he was unable to find any warrant of the law for such a proceeding. It is understood attorneys for C. O. Lobeck, Democratic candidate, will resist the opening of the machines.

Youth Cannot Get Work and Cannot Recall Where He Came From.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The young American who, devoid of memory and unable to identify himself, was found wandering on the Thames embankment early one morning last July, is again a homeless wanderer in the London streets. He had been treated in St. George's Infirmary since July; in a fit of desperation he asked to be discharged a week ago and was let go.

While the young man, who first called himself John Drexel, was an inmate of the infirmary, Dr. T. Coulson, the head physician, tried every scientific means to awaken his dormant memory, but now that he is released, the mystery surrounding his identity is as deep as ever.

A Post-Dispatch correspondentfound the young man today and told him again of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Ross of Norfolk, Va., who thought he might be their son, Charles Bertram Ross, who after an illness, which affected his head slightly, disappeared from his home last May.

"The name 'Ross' seems familiar," said the nameless one. So do the names of 'Norfolk' and 'Charles' and 'Bert.' But my mind is too sleepy still to say for certain that I am the Ross' son. Tell them this: The left one of my two upper prominent front teeth is broken, and I almost remember that I broke it while playing football. Say, too, that my upper eye tooth has a gold filling.

"If I can get to New York I am hopeful that I will learn who I am. Meantime, it is hard to earn a living here. I have been looking for work ever since I left the infirmary, but have not found it. Dr. Coulson helped me with a little money and sent food to me from the hospital. He found a room for a shilling a day, but I have to leave it because I cannot pay."

The American Society here has a fund, donated by wealthy Americans, to help stranded compatriots to reach home. At the society's offices Mr. Van Duser, the honorary secretary, said he could not assist the man without a memory until he proves he is an American. Certainly he looks the typical American and the clothes he wears were made in Chicago and Seattle and are so marked.

DYSPEPSIA, STOMACH GAS, HEARTBURN RELIEVED IN ABOUT FIVE MINUTES.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your Stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomach should take a little Diapepsin occasionally, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Sick Stomach, and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.—ADV.

MRS. SCHENK HELD WITHOUT BAIL FOR POISONING PACKER

Millionaire's Wife Occupied Room in Jail Fitted With Own Furniture.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Laura Farsworth Schenk is held incommunicado at the county jail on the charge of attempting to murder her husband. Application for bond was denied. Her attorneys and two physicians were rushed to the county jail today, and it was reported that she attempted to kill herself. This was denied. Prosecuting Attorney Handlan has stationed men at the jail to see that no statements are given out and that no one is permitted to see Mrs. Schenk.

At the North Wheeling Hospital this morning it is stated that John Schenk is not nearly so well as last night, and that a serious relapse is threatened. Attorneys were taken to the hospital during his brief rally of late last night and a will was drawn up and signed.

Schenk expressed himself bitterly against his wife and stated that she should be locked up and prosecuted. It is said that the will was drawn up to prevent Mrs. Schenk from getting any more than her legal share of the fortune.

Schenk repeatedly inquired for his two children, and it is stated that in the will he has amply taken care of Virginia, the older child, and that she will share in the disposition of the money if Schenk should die.

At the county jail, the cell of Mrs. Schenk has been filled up like an apartment in a mansion. Rich, heavy portiers, a comfortable bed, the parlor furniture of the Schenk home, all have been moved to the jail, and elaborate meals are being served. Servants bring her word from the outside.

Through her attorneys it was stated, just before noon today at the jail that Mrs. Schenk is as well as could be expected, but no reference was made to the attempted suicide.

Attorney Handlan said Mr. Schenk's illness might be said to date back nearly a year. In January he fell suddenly ill and took a trip abroad for his health, going alone. Following his return, much improved, he fell ill again and Dr. Gregory Ackerman was called in and diagnosed the case as poisoning. He was soon afterward discharged from the case.

Dr. Frank Lemoyne Hupp was then summoned by relatives, and he returned a similar diagnosis, but his opinion was kept from Mrs. Schenk until the expert analysis had been made and her husband removed to the hospital.

ARMOUR EXPECTS A DECLINE SOON IN PRICE OF FOOD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 12.—That food prices have reached their climax and now are on the down grade is the belief of meat packers in Kansas City and other packing centers. Dealers in produce and other food supplies say the same thing.

Charles W. Armour, head of the Armour interests in Kansas City, said last night:

"General food prices are working toward a lower basis. The cereals are coming down. People are going to take advantage of lower prices and that will have a tendency to relieve the stringency in meat prices, especially pork."

Armour said many growers of fruit and potatoes last year stored their crops rather than sell at good prices early in the season and finally lost out in the spring. This year, he said, they were profiting by their experience and are putting their products to consumption at reasonable profits. Just how soon the lower prices were to come Armour said he didn't know.

"But we will welcome the time," he said, "for no dealer feels it a pleasure to sell stuff at such high prices as pork has been bringing for several months. But when the packer has to pay 8, 10 and 11 cents for live hogs, what has he got to say about prices?"

Armour said that if the farmers would put forth their best efforts to raise good hogs the pork problem in this country would soon be solved, pointing out that if healthy hogs were raised the amount of pork condemned by the United States inspectors would be considerably less.

REDMOND AND HIS $200,000 SCARE ENGLISH TORIES

Press Declares Irish Leader Is Bent on Smashing the British Constitution.

Special Cable From the London Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
Copyright, 1910, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Tory press, faced by prospect of a heavy defeat in the coming elections, is crying out that Redmond, with aid of funds collected in America, is now master of the political destiny of England. The Daily Telegraph says:

"Redmond, with $200,000 in hand, is about to reappear in this country for the work of tearing down the British constitution with American money. What does England think of it? A baser episode never has has been known in the life of a great people. If Englishmen are prepared to tolerate this degree of humiliation and injury, then indeed we should begin to despair of them. To be conquered by foreign arms would be objectionable, but to be conquered by foreign gold in this way, to have historic institutions of our country destroyed by this free import of American money, this would be the end indeed."

The Daily Mail says:

"Redmond returns with $200,000 of foreign money in his pocket to keep a tied party in the House of Commons for the express purpose of smashing the British constitution. He comes back as dictator of the British empire and the meeting of Parliament Tuesday will give him opportunity of following up his threats and boasts with deeds."

Convicted of Conspiracy.

CHESTER, S. C., Nov. 12.—John Black, former member of the old State Dispensary Board, indicted jointly with Jodie M. Rawlinson and H. Lee Solomons for conspiracy to defraud the State, last night was convicted by the jury in the case. The other two defendants were acquitted.

BRUCE-BROWN IN BENZ AUTO WINS SAVANNAH RACE

Victor Leads in 415.2 Mile Event by Only 1.42 Seconds at the Finish.

WAGNER BADLY HURT

Mechanician Also Hurt; Hits Tree and Dawson and Chevrolet Have Mishaps.

By Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 17.—David Bruce-Brown, driving a Benz car, won the Grand Prize race, 415.2 miles, over Hemery, in a Benz, by one and forty-two-hundredths seconds. Bruce-Brown gets $4000 cash and the Grand Prize cup.

Haupt, driving a Benz car, struck a tree on the far side of the course in the 13th lap of the Grand Prize Automobile race here today. He was hurt, not seriously, it is thought, but his mechanic was ordered taken direct to the hospital. This was the first serious accident of the race, Dawson and Cheviolet being forced out of the race in previous laps by broken crank shafts.

Haupt had taken the lead in the 10th lap by a burst of 75-mile-an-hour speed. His withdrawal left Wagner in the lead, Nazzaro second, Bruce Brown third and Hemery Fifth.

Wagner's car overturned on Skidaway Road, his seventeenth lap. He and his mechanician, Louis Ferro, were thrown out and injured.

Later it was announced that both were badly hurt and taken to a hospital. A call was sent out into the grandstand for Mrs. Wagner. It was said she was wanted at the hospital, where her husband had been taken.

De Palma and Bruce Brown, the leaders, passed the grandstand on the twenty-first lap abreast. They entered the last lap with Bruce-Brown and Hemery leading. De Palma evidently had met trouble on the back stretch.

Cheverolt in a Marquette-Buick car was the first racer sent off. The flag was dropped to him promptly at 9 o'clock, and he made the first lap in 14 minutes and 19 seconds, which was considered good time. Scratched reduced the starters to 15. The others in their order were:

Lozier, Mulford, driver; Pope-Hartford, Basle; Alco, Grant; Marmon, Dawson; Benz, Hemery; Fiat, Nazzaro Lozier, Horan; Pope-Hartford, Disbrow; Marmon, Harroun; Benz, Bruce-Brown; Fiat, Wagner; Marquette-Buick, Burman; Benz, Haupt; Fiat, De Palma.

The distance is 415.2 miles, or 24 time around the 17.3 mile course. The prize is a $5000 gold cup and $4000 in cash to the winner, with smaller cash prizes for those finishing second and third.

Hemery made the second lap in 13 minutes and 51 seconds, an average speed of 74 miles an hour.

Weather Is Ideal.

The weather was ideal for the big race, which was transferred here from Long Island after the fatalities in the Vanderbilt Cup race. The speed and conditions make it the big event of speed and endurance.

Of the drivers, there were four or five whose names had for days been on all tongues that had talked of the great race. There were Nazzaro, Wagner, Hemery, Bruce-Brown, Burman, De Palma—masters of their craft. There was a great crowd to witness the start.

Nazzaro, Wagner, Hemery and Bruce-Brown were favorites and their cars traveled freighted not only with the hopes of the men at the wheels and of the owners, but with those who had backed their efforts with their money. Some betting had it that no American car would win; others that time as fast as 85 miles an hour would be shown by one or more laps. Popular favor seemingly had fixed on the Fiat or the Benz as the most likely winner.

Safe and Sane Policy.

Talk before the race had it that the veterans among the drivers, those handling the big foreign cars, had determined upon a safe and sane policy. Wagner, gossip had it, had announced that 70 miles an hour, sustained upon so winding a course, would be the limit of safety. This, it was said, had been made the policy of the veterans, but not of the bold younger element, who had determined to "hit up the pace."

The cars eliminated by scratches were Washington Roebling's Roebling-Planche, which had developed carburetor trouble; Matson's Simplex, which had gone wrong in its engine, and Hughes' Marquette-Buick, which was stripped for the benefit of its sister entries, giving them of its parts to meet certain imperative needs. The Sharpe-Arrow which had drawn No. 1 place went out Thursday when it left the track, killing its mechanic and putting its driver in the hospital.

Convicts See Race.

Assembled at the course were many convicts, negroes in their stripes and chains, who had been working the roads. As a reward for the diligence they had shown and the enthusiasm they had displayed in preparing the course, under the watchful eyes of the guards who stalked about with loaded shotguns, they were given a holiday and the privilege of watching the races.

Salome Too Naughty for St. Paul, but It's the Favorite in St. Louis

Just Because It's Barred Business Men of Northern City Guarantee the Success of the Operatic Season There.

And for Just the Opposite Reason Opera Lovers Here Are Exceeding All Expectations in Their Subscriptions.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

This is "A Tale of Two Cities"—or, rather, of the relative plane of culture attained by the opera-loving public of two cities.

Because it is promised that Mary Garden in "Salome" WILL NOT be one of the repertoire offerings of the Chicago-Philadelphia grand opera company's season in St. Paul, Minn., in January, the business men of St. Paul have subscribed the necessary guarantee fund and the St. Paul public is responding liberally to the appeal for season-seat subscriptions that shall insure the financial success of that engagement.

Because it is promised that Mary Garden in "Salome" WILL be one of the repertoire offerings of the Chicago-Philadelphia grand opera company's St. Louis season in January, the list of St. Louis guarantors for that season has become even larger than was at first determined upon, and the St. Louis opera-loving public, which voted overwhelmingly for "Salome" in the "post-card referendum" inaugurated to ascertain its wishes, is exceeding the most sanguine hopes of the St. Louis Grand Opera Committee in the vitally important matter of heavy season-seat subscriptions.

First presented at the Metropolitan Opera House, with Olive Fremstad in its title role, "Salome," the holy-writ story of the girl who danced before Herod for the head of John the Baptist, caused such shudders of horror to certain Metropolitan directors that they compelled the opera's almost instant withdrawal from the Metropolitan Opera House stage.

And, promptly produced by Hammerstein, at the Manhattan Opera House, "Salome" scored the most brilliant grand opera success of its generation. It was hailed as a work of tremendous significance in the comparatively new field of music-drama. The Mary Garden interpretation of its title role was pronounced a genuinely great artistic achievement, so great, indeed, as to overshadow all rival endeavors of its time.

Subsequent 'Salome' Triumphs.

From New York the Richard Strauss work was taken by Hammerstein to staid old Boston. And in Boston it repeated its overwhelming New York success.

But a greater and far more convincing triumph was still to be recorded. Only a month or so ago Mary Garden appeared as "Salome" in Paris. Her success was epochal. The critics of the French capital, while recognizing to the full the grewsome quality of "Salome's" story and the repellant aspect of its title-role figure, at the same time discerned with unerring vision the artistic worthiness of the work. Especially did they acclaim the high distinction of Mary Garden's portrayal. Their verdict was sustained by the opera-going public of Paris—and at once Mary Garden took her proud place among the greatest dramatic prima donnas of her day.

It is from this Paris triumph that Mary Garden in "Salome" will come to St. Louis—and has been forbidden to come to St. Paul—a short two months from now.

Mrs. F. H. Snyder, a prominent St. Paul woman in charge of the preliminary details of the St. Paul engagement of the Chicago-Philadelphia grand opera company, which is also affiliated with the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, has been notified by the St. Paul business men to whom she appealed in behalf of the necessary guarantee fund, that they will subscribe only on the condition that there shall be no "Salome" production and no dancing of the "Dance of the Seven Veils" by Mary Garden in St. Paul.

And Mrs. Snyder, who had until now included "Salome" in the repertoire of the St. Paul opera season, has promptly placed it on the Index Expurgatorius and notified St. Paul opera lovers that they will not be permitted to hear "Salome" in St. Paul.

Director Golterman Amused.

Attorney Guy Golterman, director of the St. Louis season of the Chicago-Philadelphia grand opera company at the Coliseum, smiled when he read the news account of the boycott declared against "Salome" by St. Paul's business men.

"The incident is chiefly significant," said Mr. Golterman, "as indicating that the musical and general art culture of St. Paul is still in a primitive stage. There is no valid ground for protest against 'Salome,' which is a great modern music drama. It has now been so hailed by the world's most authoritative civilization, and St. Paul's attitude in the matter is to be deplored as presenting that American city in a ludicrous aspect.

"The New York protest originally voiced against 'Salome' was not based upon any charge of its being immoral. The one cause that led to its being withdrawn from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House was that its unpleasant story, and especially that situation where Salome fondles the severed head of John the Baptist, was repulsive, and it was ascertained shortly after the opera's withdrawal that the one powerful Metropolitan director who mainly compelled that action was animated by certain individual reasons which, while seeming to him sufficiently weighty at the time, had no real bearing upon the merits or demerits of 'Salome' as a work of art. It was conceded by his friends that this director was justified in his course under peculiar circumstances, and the matter was dropped at that point.

"Taken up and produced by Oscar Hammerstein immediately thereafter 'Salome' proved to be the turning point in Hammerstein's fortunes. He was at that moment almost resolved upon abandoning his grand opera enterprise in New York, but the overwhelming success of 'Salome' in that city and in Boston rehabilitated him financially, gave him a prestige that he had never before enjoyed, and led directly to the long series of Hammerstein successes which followed. There has been no protest against 'Salome' as an immoral work, and Paris has now set upon that opera, and upon Mary Garden's portrayal of its title role, the stamp of an artistic approval, the validity of which is not to be denied.

"'Salome' received the heaviest vote of any opera named in the long list submitted to the opera lovers of St. Louis and of St. Louis' vast tributary territory, in the 'post-card referendum' inaugurated for the purpose of learning the operas desired for the St. Louis season's repertoire. Because of this fact, and heartily approving the choice of the St. Louis opera-loving public, the executive board of the St. Louis Grand Opera Committee, authoritatively representing the fund guarantors, caused 'Salome' to be named as the opening opera of the St. Louis season.

"The members of this executive board are: John Lawrence Mauran, chairman; Edward A. Faust, vice-chairman; Lyman T. Hay, Alexander Hilton, George W. Simmons, James E. Smith and Charles A. Stix. As the result of their wise decision 'Salome' will inaugurate the Coliseum grand opera season on Monday evening, Jan. 2, and undoubtedly will prove to be one of the most brilliant successes of the engagement. It has a powerful cast and will receive a presentation so complete in artistic excellence as never to be forgotten by those fortunate enough to attend its performance.

"The St. Paul management has been guilty of an absurdity in eliminating 'Salome' from the repertoire of the opera season in that city. St. Louis is too well advanced in musical culture and in appreciation of all great art achievement to perpetrate a blunder so laughable."

GLENNON WILL TALK TO VISITING LABOR LEADERS

Archbishop Will Deliver Address to Delegates Here for Convention.

WILL ATTEND MASS

Pilgrim Congregational Church to Have a Special Service Sunday.

Solemn high mass will be celebrated Nov. 20 at St. Lawrence O'Toole's Church for the delegates to the American Federation of Labor, who will be in St. Louis to attend the annual labor convention. Archbishop Glennon will deliver an address directed to the labor cause and the interests of the thousands who march under its banner.

The celebrant of the mass will be the Rev. Father Peter E. Dietz, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Oberlin, O. He will be assisted by the Rev. Fathers John B. Morgan of St. Leo's Church and T. J. Godfrey and Martin S. Brennan of SS. Mary and Joseph's Church. A mixed choir of 60 voices will take part in the song service.

As the day falls on the date of the observance of the patronal feast, the Rev. Father P. P. Crane has arranged to combine the two celebrations and has arranged accommodations for the labor delegates and the members of the parish.

The men's division of the Holy Name Confraternity of St. Ann's Parish will receive holy communion Sunday at mass at 7:30 a. m. Breakfast will then be served in the school hall, after which addresses will be made by several churchmen.

The annual retreat of the St. Vincent de Paul Society will be held this year at St. Ann's Church from Dec. 4 to 11. The members will also receive holy communion.

Vesper service at the Young Women's Christian Association, Garrison and Lucas avenues, Sunday at 5 p. m. will be led by the Rev. Paul Linn, pastor of the Cook Avenue M. E. Church.

During services Sunday at 4 p. m. at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, Charles Galloway will play several religious anthems.

A special address to men on the subject, "Backbone," will be delivered Sunday at 8 p. m. at the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Union and Kensington avenues, by the Rev. Charles S. Mills. The subject of his sermon at the morning services will be "Faith and Life." The Pilgrim male chorus will supply the musical program.

The Rev. Frank Foster of Cincinnati will preach Sunday at 8 p. m. at St John's M. E. Church, South. The Rev Mr. Foster is Western secretary of the American Tract Society, which has published more than 450,000,000 tracts, and more than 35,000,000 books of a religious character.

Commencing Sunday night, the mission being conducted at St. Anthony's Church will be for the men of the parish. The last week the mission has been especially for the women. The services are being conducted by the Rev. Fathers Vincent Frost and Flavian Larbes.

A series of revival meetings will begin Sunday evening at Immanuel Baptist Church, Margaretta and Marcus avenues, of which the Rev. M. H. Riggs is pastor. The services will be led by the Rev. J. H. Dew, a Baptist State evangelist, and will continue every night next week.

The donation of $5000 by the Congregational Church Building Society to the Memorial Congregational Congregation insures the erection of a new church at Victoria avenue and Graham street on a lot recently purchased by the congregation. The pastor of the church, the Rev. William Smith, has announced that work on the new structure will not be begun until a buyer is found for the present church building at Sulphur avenue and Way street.

The annual congress of the Midland Province of the Salvation Army will be held in St. Louis Nov. 16 to 20. Thomas Estill of St Louis, in command of all Salvation Army work west of the Mississippi River, will preside at the sessions. He will be assisted by his wife, who is head of the women's rescue and slum work, and several provincial officers of the organization. The program will include addresses, councils, rallies and public salvation demonstrations.

A Christmas bazar and home market will be given next Friday at the Art Building of the American Woman's League, University City, under the auspices of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the University City M. E. Church, South. A stereopticon lecture on Alaska will be given by T. Frank Wood. The young folk will be entertained at an informal reception.

Silver jubilee services will be held Sunday morning and afternoon at the Salem Evangelical Church, Margaretta and Marcus avenues.

A meeting of the St. Louis Presbytery will be held Monday at 10 a. m. in the Odd Fellows' building.

Rabbi Leon Harrison will preach on "Mysticism and Religious Mysteries" Sunday morning at Temple Israel.

The Rev. B. P. Fullerton, secretary of Presbyterian Home Missions and Church Erection, who has returned to St. Louis after a trip of two months in the Southern field, will preach Sunday morning at the King's Highway Presbyterian Church.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 12.—John Lindquist, aged 49, a member of the Greely relief expedition into the Arctic region, ended his life by drinking poison in a hotel last night.

He was in ill health and was without funds. Papers found among his effects show that he was a member of a Knights of Pythias lodge at San Antonio, Tex.

CITY CHARTER TO GIVE CITY A RIGHT TO OWN RAILROADS

Plan Will Be Submitted to Legalize Operation of Free Bridge Operation.

An enabling section, authorizing the city to build, own and operate railroad terminals in connection with the free bridge, will be a part of the new city charter being drawn by the Board of Freeholders. Pending the completion of the charter, the board is urging civic organizations to withhold indorsement of the granting of railroad franchises over the free bridge.

If the section is adopted, it will give the city power to construct and operate the terminals, a vote being necessary before bonds to build the terminals could be issued.

The terminals provision in the new charter became publicly known through a letter written by Julius Pitzman to the East End Property Owners' Association, requesting that association to act slowly in endorsing the bill granting the Southern Traction Co. a franchise over the bridge.

"MOTHER OF THE PASSENGER AGENTS" KILLED BY ENGINE

Mrs. Margaret J. Pope, Honored by National Association, Was 82 Years Old.

Fate decreed that Mrs. Margaret J. Pope, mother of a prominent railroad traffic man, and known as the "mother of the American Association of Traveling Passenger Agents," should be killed by a locomotive.

Mrs. Pope, who was 82 years old, was driving her buggy across the Frisco tracks near the Shrewsbury Station Friday afternoon, when a freight train struck the buggy and hurled her out. She was dragged by the engine and died a half hour after being taken to her home. Her funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the home, 7617 Suffolk avenue, Shrewsbury.

She had lived in St. Louis more than sixty years and was of noble Scottish lineage. Her son, E. B. Pope, is Western passenger agent for the C. & O. and an amateur playwright. Through attending national conventions of passenger agents with him, she became known to them and at the last meeting in Dallas a loving cup was presented to her.

No Fees for New Mexican Officials.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 12.—The New Mexico constitutional convention has placed county offices on a straight salary basis, doing away with the fee system. It also adopted a clause which gives county officials a four-year term, but prevents their re-election, or election to any other county office until four years shall have elapsed.

MISSIONARY AND WIFE SAY YATTER IS GOOD CITIZEN

They Assert Victim of Pollard's Wrath Is Innocent of Any Wrong Doing.

Benjamin F. Elliott and his wife, missionaries, living over Sam Yatter's nickelodeon at 2701 Franklin avenue, are his staunch defenders. They declare that he is a young man of fine reputation and behavior and that Judge Pollard's rebuke from the bench Thursday, when he called Yatter the most dangerous man in St. Louis, was wholly unwarranted.

Yatter got a license as private watchman three weeks ago, because he often has trouble with rowdies in his nickelodeon. Wednesday night he ejected Christy Jones. He says Jones returned and made noises like a cat in the place, so that he arrested him. At the patrol box Jones drew a knife, Yatter says. Yatter hit him with a billy and subdued him.

Yatter had no chance to explain this in the Dayton Street Police Court, he says. He declares that as soon as Judge Pollard learned that the prosecuting witness was also the arresting officer and that the offense had been committed on his premises, he launched into a tirade.

Judge Pollard dismissed the charge against Jones, and advised Yatter to quit as a private watchman, but Yatter still holds that position.

CASH TO TEACH GERMAN ASKED

Applications for Free Instructions Outrun Funds.

The Citizens' Committee of the Deutscher Schulverein, headed by Edward Devoy, has sent out a request for contributions for the support of the weekly German classes now being conducted on Saturdays in the Blair, Peabody and Garfield school buildings.

These classes were opened through an arrangement between the society and the Board of Education, and books and tuition are free, but the demand for instruction has outrun the funds at hand, making it necessary to refuse applicants until more funds are provided.

A. R. Schroeder is secretary of the committee. Dr. Emil Simon, a member of the Board of Education, is president of the Deutscher Schulverein.

WOMAN WHO RESEMBLES BELLE ELMORE EXCITES TOWN

Faints at Mention of Crippen, and on Reading Story of Death Sentence.

ALIX, Alberta, Nov. 12.—A woman who arrived here Wednesday, was reported to be Belle Elmore Crippen, for whose supposed murder Crippen is under sentence to be hanged in London, Nov. 23.

The woman went from the train direct to a livery barn and ordered a team and wagon. She left a deposit with the liveryman for the return of the team, saying she would return the horses next day, by a friend. They were returned by a farmer.

While a woman was waiting at the barn, the Crippen case was being discussed and a man remarked: "I guess they will make old Doc Crippen squak over in London."

On hearing this, the woman fainted, but soon recovered. In a store, she eagerly scanned newspapers and again fainted while reading about the Crippen sentence.

These and other incidents of a similar nature, caused excited speculation, as the woman's appearance tallied with descriptions of Belle Elmore. The police have the woman under surveilance and she may be arrested today.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 12.—R. D. Gould of Dallas, a superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Co., is in jail at Baird, Tex., under three days' sentence.

J. W. Perry, local manager of the company, was fined $100, and a warrant is out for the arrest of Norman Kinker, also a superintendent of the Western Union at Dallas, charging contempt of court in the company's refusal to give the grand jury at Baird all the messages sent from Baird during the past year ordering liquor.

The files are now under lock and key.

BONE GRAFTING ON GIRL IS SHOWN AT SURGEON'S MEETING

Dr. John B. Murphy Shows Little Patient Who Withstood Operation.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A 10-year-old girl, six inches of the bone of whose upper arm had been grafted in from her own leg was exhibited by Dr. John B. Murphy at the meeting of the Chicago Surgical Society last night. Dr. Murphy's speech was a dissertation of the technique of bone surgery. It was given at Northwestern University, to the largest audience of visiting surgeons that has assembled during the congress.

The little girl, who attended the lecture to demonstrate the success of bone grafting, was operated on last September. Owing to a disease, six inches of the bone of her upper arm was cut out, beginning directly under the shoulder joint. A silver rod was placed in the gap to keep the tension of the muscles from drawing the ends together and alongside the silver rod a splinter of bone from the child's tibia, one of the bones of the leg was placed. From this splinter and the undestroyed portions of the membrane that had inclosed the bone of her arm, new bone had grown so that the child's arm was as good as ever and showed no signs of the operation.

Life's Blessings

For the mother in the home to be strong and well, able to devote her time and strength to the rearing of children, is one of life's greatest blessings. Often the bearing of children injures the mother's health, if she has not prepared her system in advance for the important event. Mother's Friend is a penetrating oil that thoroughly lubricates every muscle, nerve and tendon involved at such times, and thus promotes physical comfort. It aids nature by expanding the skin and tissues, and prepares the system for the coming of baby. Mother's Friend assures a quick and natural recovery for every woman who uses it. It is for sale at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers.

NEW BOOKS

"FOUR HUNDRED GOOD STORIES."

THE introduction to this book is a sufficient index to its contents:

"A collection of anecdotes, like corned beef hash, should be judged as much by what is left out as by what is put in. The editor has sought to exclude from this little book all stories of purely local appeal, as well as stories that depend for their humor upon ridicule of any nation or creed.

"Let me see. Here is a Mark Twain story that has been going the rounds of the magazines:

"Mark Twain once went to borrow a certain book from a neighbor in Tarrytown.

"'Why, yes, Mr. Clemens, you're more than welcome to it,' the neighbor told him. 'But I must ask you to read it here. You know I make it a rule never to let any book go out of my library.'

"Some days later the neighbor wished to borrow Twain's lawn mower.

"'Why, certainly,' the humorist genially assured him. 'You're more than welcome to it. But I must ask you to use it here. You know I make it a rule'—

"Hold on, though! What of the story we find among Bacon's Apothegms, three hundred years ago:

"Master Mason of Trinity College sent his pupil to another of the fellows, to borrow a book of him, who told him, 'I am loath to lend my books out of my chambers; but if it pleases thy tutor to come and read it here, he shall as long as he will.' It was winter, and, some days after, the same fellow sent to Master Mason to borrow his bellows; but Master Mason said, 'I am loath to lend my bellows out of my chambers; but if thy tutor would come and use it here, he shall as long as he will.'

"And of whom was Master Mason the reincarnation? Aristippus, possibly? or Diogenes? or Antisthenes?

"Several years ago a magazine printed this:

"A Southern gentleman, carving chicken at dinner one day, was perplexed to find that the bird had but one leg. The nervousness of his darky butler at the time of the discovery, gave him a clew to the fate of the other leg.

"When the meal was over, he questioned the darky.

"'Dat fuhtenly am strange, suh. It mus' be dat, dat fool bird only had one laig in de fust place.'

"'Washington,' said the master severely, 'did you see a chicken with but one leg?'

"Just then the darky caught sight of a fowl in the yard with one leg drawn up under her.

"'Quick, massa, look dar! he cried excitedly. 'Dar's one now.

"The gentleman went to the door and said: 'Shoo!' The fowl quickly lowered the hidden leg and scurried off.

"'Yes, massa, yes,' protested the darkey, 'but yo' nebber said shoo to de one on de table.'

"A suscriber wrote to the magazine indignantly protesting against the age of this story.

"'Age is to be respected,' he wrote, 'but isn't this rubbing it in a little? I first heard a noted Southern raconteur tell that yarn over 20 years ago.'

"'Twenty years ago!' thought the anecdote editor gloomily. Gradually a vague memory, taking form, rose from his subconscious mind. He took a book from his shelves and hurriedly turned its pages. Suddenly, his face lighted up with the triumph of discovery. He had found that this very characteristic darky story, stripped of its dialect forms Novel IV, Sixth Day, in the Decameron of Boccaccio. Twenty years ago? Between five and six hundred years ago!

But Boccaccio makes no claim of originality for his merry tales. From whom did he hear this story? With a sigh, the anecdote editor returned to his work. Partly as an expression of his feeling, perhaps, he accepted this one:

"A little fellow who had just had felt the hard side of a slipper, when the tears had dried somewhat, turned to his mother. 'Mother,' he asked, 'did grandpa spank father when he was a little boy?'

"'Yes,' answered his mother impressively.

"'And did his father whip him when he was little?'

"'Yes.'

A pause.

"'Well who started this thing anyway?'"

"Four Hundred Good Stories," by Robert Rudd Whiting. The Baker and Taylor Co.

"THE CALL OF THE NATION."

DAVID STARR JORDAN, president of Leland Stanford University, makes a plea for "taking politics out of politics." By that he means taking graft and commercialism out of politics. He wants politics to be what it really is. He wants it to be the science of citizenship. In order to make clear how necessary this is in a democracy, Dr. Jordan touches on all our political and on some of our economic and social scores. The little book is up to the minute. With rare penetration the author sees the significance of the various reform movements, important public utterances, and movements for betterment which are part of our day and age. There is a co-ordination of all these in a form. These realising their true significance. A strong plea for conservation is part of the book. By conservation President Jordan does not mean merely the preservation of forests, water rights and fisheries. He wants human life conserved as well.

For a little volume of less than 100 pages, "The Call of the Nation" contains an enormous amount of information. Nor are facts and figures dully arranged. They are in the usual charming style of Dr. Jordan. A wide reading of this volume would make for better citizenship and would make it possible for many of the ideas and ideals advocated in the book to be carried out. (American Unitarian Association, Boston.)

EXCELLENT EPIGRAMS.

"SOUL AND SUBSTANCE," by Stephen Berrien Stanton, author of "The Essential Life," is evidently the ripe thought of a man who sees something of life behind the scenes. His conclusions are optimistic and helpful—couched also in a sparkling, original style. Epigrams such as the following are sprinkled through the pages:

"Only enthusiasm and love scale heights." "The Rose of love covers every wall on which we train it." "What is founded on affection stands." "Women embroider every garment of existence." "It is only when a man flowers that the world botanizes him." "Men of substance drown in the oil of their own richness." "Joy is a gypsy that pines away in the captivity of satiety." "The wise man lives his wisdom. the foolish preaches it." "By fulfilling ourselves, we are most faithful to family and country." "When men gain heaven, earth is thrown in." "The sunlight of love snuffs out the rushlight of duty." (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

UNFAMILIAR ENGLAND.

A CHRONICLE of the extensive wanderings by motor car of an American in rural England and a record of his discoveries in the out-of-the-way corners of the island; also of delightful incursions into Scotland and Ireland. It is a story redolent with the summer beauty of the loveliest countryside in the world, and is replete with the tales of lonely ruins, quaint old churches, historic manor houses and palaces; it takes one through the leafy byways, into the retired country villages, and to many unfrequented nooks on the seashore. Especially has the writer sought out the historic shrines in England of especial interest to Americans themselves, and his book is quite a revelation in this particular. The book has much of interest seldom noted in the literature of travel, and will please alike the actual traveler or the reader who does his traveling in an easy chair by his own fireside.

"In Unfamiliar England," by Thomas D. Murphy, with 48 duogravures from English photographs and 16 reproductions in color from original paintings. L. C. Page & Co.)

"THE ART OF AVIATION."

DURING the past year of remarkable progress in the development of the aeroplane a great number of aircraft have been built which have refused to fly. The aero experts say that the reason back of the failures is the ignorance of the scientific principles of aviation and of the construction of the planes or supporting surfaces.

"The Art of Aviation," by R. W. A. Brewer, was evidently written to dispell this ignorance. The author goes deeply into his subject, and novice builders of aeroplanes would do well to make the copiously illustrated volume a text-book.

One of the interesting prophesies that Mr. Brewer founds on a scientifically worked-out theory is that aeroplanes will be made to travel at the rate of 200 miles an hour for the reason that the greater the speed of the aeroplane the less liable it is to danger of capsizing. (McGraw-Hill Book Co.)

"THE WORLD'S CHILDHOOD."

THIS is a book of sermons by Louis Albert Banks, D. D. There are 30 of them, with texts taken from the first three chapters of the Book of Genesis. They are marked by the same spirit of modernity and application to present conditions in human life that have won for his many volumes wide circles of readers. They abound in suggestive anecdotes, pertinent quotations and uplifting comments on life. Dr. Banks is now pastor of the Independence Avenue Methodist Church in Kansas City. These sermons were all preached in this church during the past year. Among the significant titles are "The Background of Human Life," "The Treasures of the Night," "The Appeal of the Sky," "The Romance of the Fields," "The Lost Paradise" and "The Conflict of the Centuries." (Funk & Wagnalls.)

"PLEASURES OF LITERATURE."

THIS is a handsome reprint of the well-known "Pleasures of Literature" by Robert Aris Willmott, with an introduction by Cranstoun Metcalfe. Few essays upon literature are so beautiful, and perhaps none is more profound. Willmott wrote in the first half of the nineteenth century, and there was stored in his discriminating mind such a wealth of the writings of all men as very few men have ever possessed. (Putnam's.)

PICTURE REVIEW.

("White Roses," by Catherine Holland Brown. Duffield & Co.)

"JESUS."

"JESUS—A PROBLEM, A TEACHER, A PERSONALITY, A FORCE," by Prof. D. W. Bornemann, D. D. LL.D., and others. The authors of this volume (W. Bornemann, W. Veit, H. Schuster and E. Foerster), in which much interest has already been awakened among Continental theologians, belong to a new school of so-called modern theology, the impulse of which was given at Gottingen in 1889 by Albert Ritschel. Among its well-known adherents are Harnack, Hermann and Rade. They have been commonly and collectively known as "the friends of the Christian World;" indeed they have so designated themselves, although they do not form an organized party. Their concern chiefly has been to work out problems in theology by employing methods of modern science; they aim to reconcile the conflict between modern thought and the piety of ancient days. In this field they have shown an intense activity and in Germany have produced notable results. Many German cities have unions that work in the same direction. Frankfort-on-the-Main is generally recognized as the headquarters of the movement. Its leaders aim alike at the elimination of a worn-out orthodoxy and of a radicalism which is opposed to the Christian religion. By W. Bornemann, W. Veit, H. Schuster and E. Foerster. Translated from the German by George William Gilmore, associate editor of the "New Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge." (Funk & Wagnalls.)

"THE DAY OF THE COUNTRY CHURCH."

THIS book is by the Rev. J. D. Ashenhurst, who has prepared it as a result of long experience in a rural pastorate. His aim is to awaken public interest in the movement for greater Christian and social improvement in the rural districts of America. He believes that a great day is at hand for effective work in this field. While changes in the past half century have accentuated churches in industrial and commercial communities as centers of life and power, the country church, so far from having had its day, has at the same time become a factor of increasing importance in the uplift of the social and religious life of much the largest part (65 per cent) of our population. This importance has been much increased recently by the cry of economists for a movement, "Back to the Soil." The tendency to crowd into cities has already received a check. With that check has come a growing interest in country life. Not only has this been shown in the extension of the rural mail delivery, the telephone, the trolley line, better roads and scientific farming, but also in the church. Mr. Ashenhurst deals not with mere theories in matters of faith and conduct, but with actual conditions in rural communities and the means by which they should now be met. He discusses all phases of the subject—not only church life proper, but methods for widening its influence and restoring it to its former supremacy as a center of wholesome influences. The parish house, the Sunday school, church influence on young men and young women in their social activities—all these things are taken up for discussion with practical suggestions. (Funk & Wagnalls.)

A WILDE POEM.

OSCAR WILDE'S poem, "The Sphinx," comes out in an exquisite little volume. The daintily weird design on the cover is a fitting preface to the poem. At the head of this youthful work from the pen of Wilde is a note by Robert Ross, who says that the poem was probably written several years before the author's first volume of verse appeared. There is something in the opening lines of "The Sphinx" which calls to mind Edgar Allan Poe's "The Raven," although Wilde's poem differs greatly from that of the American poet who has at last found a nitch in the Hall of Fame. Here is opening stanza:

In a dim corner of my room for longer than my fancy thinks
A beautiful and silent sphinx has watched me through the shifting gloom.
Inviolate and immobile she does not, rise, she does not stir,
For silver moons are naught to her and naught to her the suns that reel.

The following stanzas are written in the Wilde style, beautiful in spite of morbidity. (John Lane Co.)

HOW TO TALK AND HOW TO ARGUE.

"HOW TO DEVELOP SELF-CONFIDENCE IN SPEECH AND MANNER," is by Grenville Kleiser, author of "How to Speak in Public." Mr. Kleiser's work, though intended primarily for public speakers aims to be helpful to men and women in all vocations. He addresses himself particularly to such as "defraud themselves by doubt, fear-thought and foolish timidity." He believes there are thousands of persons who, for want of self-confidence, are "held in physical and mental bondage." They realize only a small part of their own possessions because they distrust themselves. He believes his book may be of substantial benefit to such as wish to rise above mediocrity, and who feel within themselves "something of their divine inheritance." Chapters in the work deal with methods of correction for self-consciousness, with manners as a power in the making of men, with the value of a cultivated and agreeable voice, with confidence in society and business, with finding oneself, with the physical man, with will power, self-culture, etc. One should not alone think of himself as strong and cheerful, but should endeavor to express those qualities in voice, face, words, manner, work, daily life. One part of the work is devoted to a scheme or outline for actual work in self-culture. By means of a prescribed plan Mr. Kleiser believes students "may systematically develop a high type of manly self-confidence." He sets forth a series of suggestions for 31 days to be followed in the cultivation of qualities that make for power, these to be used systematically by the student in improving himself.

"How to Argue and Win" is by the same author. Mr. Kleiser aims in this work to do exactly what his title implies. His experience as a teacher of effective public speaking has convinced him that about ninety-nine in a hundred can argue to one who can argue and win. This is remarkable, considering that upon the cultivation of this faculty depends the power, of not only the lawyer and preacher, but the business man, politicians and salesman. He gives different suggestions for training the mind to accuracy of thought and in the power of clear and effective statements. His method is thoroughly practical, being, in fact, the result of his experience in teaching men how to think on their feet. He insists on clearness and conciseness in statements, skill in selection of words and an effective personality, tactful methods, and a long course of discipline in debate. (Funk & Wagnalls.)

"SIMPLY WOMEN."

"SIMPLY WOMEN" is simply a collection of Marcel Prevost's very Frenchy sketches. This Parisian believes that he knows more about the feminine heart, mind and soul than any other male on the globe. These sketches are word pictures of various phases of life and love as it is lived and loved in France. Especially does he deal with that class wherein each well equipped woman has a husband, a lover and a confidante.

The little stories are told in nearly every case by letters, those perfect letters that no one ever writes except to sell, and they have been translated with great care and skill into pleasing English. The book is modeled after George Moore's "Memoirs of My Dead Life." In "Simply Women" the first person has been eliminated, and that's a blessing. As a whole, it is nasty, Frenchy, unwholesome, but very readable, attractive, and well done. Like the motor car and the old-fashioned razor, this book should be in the hands of mature persons only. (McCauley Pub. Co., N. Y.)

A FRIEND TO PARENT AND CHILD.

"THE Care and Training of Children," by Dr. Le Grand Kerr, author of several important works dealing with child life and child development, is the latest addition to the literature dealing with the training of children. The little book will be found valuable in many ways. It takes cognizance both of the physical and moral nature of the child. It is not merely theoretic. It is thoroughly practical. Parents are taught how to do things to help develop healthy offspring, healthy in mind as well as in body. Dr. Kerr gives the lessons in an easy, unassuming style, unincumbered by technical phrases. Practically every phase dealing with the life and well-being of the child is covered. The fact that the author is a specialist, as appears from the many titles he holds and positions he occupies, counts for much in connection with the lessons he tries to bring home. Being a father himself, the volume is dedicated to his own children. Dr. Kerr naturally knows from experience many of the things he tells parents. The price placed on the book is so trifling as to make it possible for all parents to read it. That it ought to be read by all parents and prospective parents, goes without saying. Books like this one brought out by Dr. Kerr should really be regarded as in the nature of a public service, for through them parents can learn how to help develop happy and healthy citizens. To be sure, many of the suggestions given by the author cannot be carried out by persons who are not placed advantageously economically, but most of them can be easily carried out by the great bulk of American parents. (Funk & Wagnalls.)

The Flying Mercury

By the Author of The Game and the Candle

The Flying Mercury commands a public of its own. Whoever has thrilled at the sight or the thought of the whirling cars will find his thrill recalled and renewed. Whoever has loved will delight in this romance of the daring driver and the sweet, gentle, generous, brave and determined girl. It is a theme of the moment, love in its latest setting. Like the hero in the race that forms its climax, it breaks records for sweetness. It is love at high gear, with Cupid at the steering wheel. Beautifully illustrated in full color by Edmund Frederick. Price, $1.50 postpaid.

By LUCIA CHAMBERLAIN

Author of The Coast of Chance

Son of the Wind

Miss Chamberlain's new story is easily her most original, most distinctive production. She is still the romantic story-teller, still fascinatingly alive to the changing moods of mystery, but her new theme departs from familiar fields. Son of the Wind is at once a tale of mystery, a love romance and a poetic idyl. Set amid the pines and redwoods of California, the story breathes balsamic fragrance and opens mountain vistas of lofty beauty. Illustrated by Herman Pfeifer. Price, $1.50 postpaid.

By MARIE VAN VORST

Author of The Girl From His Town

First Love

By her very successful romance, The Girl From His Town, Marie Van Vorst established her eminence as a writer of love stories. This eminence she again reaches, this public she will not disappoint, with her new book. Like its title, it is fresh and fragrant. The characters are likable people. Its interest is of the heart and its sure appeal is to the heart. Illustrated by F. Graham Cootes. Price, $1.50 postpaid.

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

Author of Bobby Burnit, The Early Bird, etc.

Young Wallingford

In Wallingford Mr. Chester has created a genius. He is a marvel of ingenuity, a wizard of wily ways. He leaves no talents of his own tied in a napkin and he deftly removes the talents from his neighbors. Illustrated by F. R. Gruger and Henry Raleigh. Price, $1.50 postpaid.

By KATE TRIMBLE SHARBER

The Annals of Ann

A delicious book, thoroughly "different" and as delightful as it is novel. The idea of having a romantic little Southern girl tell a series of love stories as they look to her is entirely fresh. It is accomplished not only with perfect good taste, but with an incessant flow of humor. The combination of sentiment and humor is irresistible. There is at least one healthy laugh in every paragraph, at least one giggle in every sentence and a love story in every one of a dozen chapters. Grown-ups, for whom the book is intended, will find in Ann a fund of fun. She is a discovery and a joy. Illustrated by Paul Meylan. Price, $1.50 postpaid.

What the Reviewers Say about the Great Novel

THE DOUBLE CROSS

By GILSON WILLETS

New York TIMES — "A tale of red hot blood pulsing through the veins of the American hero no less than through those of the passionate Spanish heroines."

New York AMERICAN — "Here is a book that tired men, weighted with the cares of humdrum business, will sit up nights to read. Put your feet in your slippers and your slippers on the fender—and read until the house is asleep and the clock stops striking in the Manhattan Tower and the red lights flash the smallest hours of the night."

Atlanta JOURNAL — "A novel far above the average in style and expression, and which promises to be one of the best sellers of the year."

New York TRIBUNE — "Here is all that the lover of complications of plot can desire."

New York WORLD — "The author certainly does keep things moving, and never loses his grip on events or the reader."

Baltimore AMERICAN — "A fascinating novel of love and adventure, with a plot unsurpassed in recent fiction, and while it has all the interest of a mystery story, it is primarily a great big love story."

Minneapolis TRIBUNE — "This novel is a gem scintillating with genius and with the inner fire of the personality of the author."

Albany JOURNAL — "Last but not least, 'The Double Cross' is a story entirely clean."

"The Greatest American Mystery Story Ever Written" —New York Journal.

SALVAGE CORPS ROUTED FROM BEDS TO FIND WATCHMAN DEAD

Heart Disease Is Supposed to Have Caused the Death of James Butler.

When Capt. James Casey and the other members of Salvage Corps No. 1 slid down the poles from the second-floor dormitory at the company's headquarters, 1125 Locust street, at 4:30 a. m., Saturday, in response to a series of taps on the iron stand pipe used for awakening the firemen, they found the corps' watchman, James Butler, lying dead on the floor.

Private Watchman John Boyd, who had summoned the firemen, said he had discovered Butler breathing his last. In the hope of finding a spark of life in their comrade's body, the firemen summoned Dr. Herman G. Crosby of 1127 Olive street, who declared life extinct.

The body was taken to the morgue. Butler was 58 years old and lived with his family at 2527 Elliot avenue. His death is believed to have been due to heart disease.

DAINTY CHINESE BRIDE IS 16

She Reaches Boston With Husband Who Is 59.

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—Among the 48 Chinese brought into Boston by the steamship A. W. Perry from Halifax was a bride, aged 16, whose husband is 59. Her name was given as Wong Shee, wife of Toy Tung Hoy, a Chicago merchant.

They were married in Canada a few days ago and the bride wore all her wedding garments, and because of her beauty and daintiness was the favorite of the ship.

NEW FIGHT ON TO DRIVE OUT CHICAGO SALOONS IN SPRING

Leader of Campaign Says Illinois General Assembly Will Be Favorable.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Four thousand petition circulators have been organized secretly in a new campaign to drive saloons from Chicago. The first sheets of the petition were returned to headquarters yesterday.

It was decided upon at a meeting of the Local Option Committee of the Anti-Saloon League, having in hand the project to bring the proposition before voters of the city at the spring election, April 4 next.

As a further encouragement for this local fight Supt. James K. Shields of the Anti-Saloon League announced that the "drys" would control both branches of the Legislature this session of the General Assembly beginning next January. He based his claims upon a tabulation of the lawmakers-elect classified according to their pledges upon two possibilities of legislation—county local option and repeal of the present local option law.

Cornell Glee Club's Itinerary.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The Cornell glee, banjo and mandolin clubs on Dec. 21 will begin the longest trip ever undertaken by them. It will end New Year's eve with a grand concert in the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. The itinerary includes these cities: Rochester, Cleveland, Chicago, Milwaukee, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg and New York.

SYMPHONY SEASON OPENS WITH PROOF OF GREAT GROWTH

Max Zach Reveals Orchestra's Betterment in Severe Program Test.

ONE BIG INSTRUMENT

Played Upon by Conductor's Wand, Organization Finely Acquits Itself.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

IN the inaugural concert of the Symphony Orchestra's thirty-first season, given at the Odeon last night before a large and distinguished audience, Conductor Zach deliberately set himself and his players the task of proving that the organization is now precisely what a true orchestra should be—a great human instrument, alert with individual intelligence, yet with all individuality subordinated to the whole, effectively played upon by one man.

Convincing proof to this end was submitted.

The evening's program demanded its submission under penalty of revealing the truth of structural weakness. It was a program devised for the purpose of exploiting orchestral virtuosity. One might say at its close that there have been symphony nights in the past when more beautiful and satisfying compositions were presented, but the prime and significant truth of the occasion could not be denied—that not until now was the ultimate fact of orchestral excellence in all sections made so plain.

Of this revelation, the most memorable was that in which the season's first-night audience was told of the marked development of the string section under Mr. Zach's control. The earliest intimation of such betterment came with the opening movement of the program's second number, Berlioz's "Fantastic Symphony, Op. 14," that movement of mingled revery and passion, of blended melancholy and joy, dominated by the first violins and calling inflexibly for their most masterful employment.

Here, with the admirable Hugo Olk and his marvelously sweet "singing fiddle" leading a splendid choir-volume of violin tone, the exposition submitted was that of surpassing efficiency and admirable training, leaving no reason for further doubting as to the ability of the players in this section to respond in the fullest degree to whatever of artistry may be required of them by their conductor. The proof was again submitted in the same number's second movement, voicing the lilting gayety of a ballroom scene, its dance-strain ravishingly carried on the lightest and most melodious of strings.

Then, in this same symphony's third movement, a pastoral picture, an especial demand upon woodwinds and the battery was excellently answered by flute, oboe, English horn, clarinet, bassoon, horn and the drums, the pictoral and harmonic effect attained being of the most satisfying quality. In the fourth movement the weird gallows' march, the violas, double basses, brasses and drums were most exactingly called upon, acquitting themselves with a sureness and confidence full of promise for the season's high distinction. The closing number of the Berlioz symphony, that fantastic and shuddery dream of a witches' Sabbath, completed an illustration of orchestral efficiency such as the Symphony players have never before submitted.

The one novelty of the evening was the Borodin descriptive number, "In the Steppes of Middle Asia," a composition picturing to the ear the progress of an Arab caravan across the Siberian desert under the protection of Russian soldiers.

This, while a beautiful example of harmonic picture-making, was beautiful rather in the sense of an impressionistic sketch than of a solicitously completed painting. Its color is admirable, its atmosphere lifelike in realism. Nevertheless, when its brief course has been run the listener feels a sense of the keenest regret that Borodin, master of the tonal brush as he proves himself to be, had not cared to paint with bigger, more minutely considered and more enduring strokes. The woodwinds, brasses, battery and strings distinguished themselves in this number's presentation.

The overture to Mozart's "Don Juan," opening the program, was competently performed, but contains little that appeals to the ear or the musical imagination, not by any means forecasting or reflecting the beauty of the opera score itself. The program's final number, the lovely ballet music from Massenet's "Le Cid," was ravishingly presented, its five Spanish dance movements, the Castillane, Andalouse, Aragonaise, Aubade and Navarraise measures, rich in sensuous appeal, being developed to the utmost.

As thus offering, at the new season's outset, the fullest proof of orchestral efficiency, last night's program was all the more enjoyable for its lack of a soloist, since the emphasized performer must inevitably have blurred the evening's especial significance. It will be repeated at today's matinee.

SPEAKER ROMBAUER'S TREASON.

Speaker Rombauer's denunciation of all those who oppose abject surrender to the insolent demands of the bridge monopoly, in his address to the St. Louis Railway Club, emphasizes his long-since demonstrated unfitness to represent St. Louis people in the House of Delegates. His gloating over the refusal of the railroads to give the city just concessions is treason to the interests of his constituents. His apparent assumption that he spoke for the municipal administration in his outline of proposed action on bridge and terminal problems calls for a prompt disclaimer if the administration hopes to avoid overwhelming popular condemnation.

We assure the St. Louis Railway Club that Mr. Rombauer's remarks are wholly misleading as to the temper and purpose of the St. Louis people. They insist upon just treatment from the railroads and will not be satisfied until every discriminating toll has been abolished. The fight on the remainder of the arbitraries is just beginning.

Mr. Rombauer's reflection on the people's intelligence in his reference to the free bridge bond issue is given a color of justification by the fact of his own election. But the voters were deceived in him and they never repeat mistakes.

Of the 220-odd Democrats who will sit in the next House of Representatives only three have served when their party was in the majority. J. F. C. Talbot of Maryland was a member of the House when the Democrats controlled it in the 46th, 48th and 53d Congresses. William A. Jones of Virginia was a member of the 52d and 53d Congresses and Champ Clark was in the 53d Congress. The sensation of responsibility which will come to the other veteran Democrats will be novel, at least.

THE PANAMA EXPOSITION.

Not only San Francisco, but all California is bent on landing the exposition to be held in celebration of the opening of the Panama Canal. The city has subscribed $7,500,000 for the purpose and last Tuesday the proposal that the State contribute $10,000,000 was overwhelmingly indorsed at the polls. This is an impressive outburst of enthusiasm. It will have a weight not less than that of the announcement the California delegation will carry to Congress that no assistance from the Government will be needed to finance the proposed exposition.

It is doubtful if New Orleans will be able to make so strong a financial showing in support of its claims for the location of the exposition. It must rely on its proximity to the population that will give the exposition success and on its generosity in contributing which, all things considered, is not a bit behind that of San Francisco.

It is an interesting contest between these two cities. While New Orleans is nearer the canal San Francisco on the other hand is on the Pacific Coast in touch with the Orient. To bring the Orient and our Pacific Coast in closer communication by water with the Eastern half of the United States is the object of the canal.

Chairman Fay of the Democratic City Committee defends his organization by denouncing the people. But the people will continue to vote.

THE "FAIR BUSINESS CHANCE."

In all such cases as that of the young St Louis clerk whom exorbitant rates of interest, payable to "loan sharks," involved in embezzlement, the view of the loan shark is that the risk of losing everything from irresponsible borrowers is at least as great as the exorbitant charge for the loan.

This is a confession that the business is one of speculation in irresponsibility. Under its methods, when pessimism takes it for granted that nine in ten are apt to be bad, the risk from all the rest is loaded on the one who turns out good. Those who do pay interest as well as principal, must pay enough to cover not only the risk in their own cases, but in all the rest.

When this sort of speculation cannot be stopped or regulated into fairness by law, experiments in New York and a number of European cities show a better means of checking it.

Such experiments when made systematically in loans to those supposedly in "the most desperate circumstances" show that even in its desperation, human nature pays a fair business dividend on a fair business chance.

In New York, those who began experiments in this kind of philanthropy, now repudiate the philanthropic idea. They report this year that the experiment is a business success, paying a business return on their total investment. They claim no credit which does not belong to human nature, even when hardest pushed towards irresponsibility. This sort of optimism may do most to check irresponsibility, whether it is shown by "loan sharks" or their victims.

Two shafts of light have at last penetrated the Stygian darkness of Michigan which elected two Democrats to Congress.

THE FIRST DEMOCRATIC DUTY.

Evidence or indications of fraud in the St. Louis election should lead to a thorough investigation. Vigorous prosecutions should follow the discovery of proofs. The people of all parties in St. Louis demand honest elections. We have made progress in that direction and we must continue on the path of progress. It is imperative that Republicans who have denounced Democratic frauds in this city should stand with Democrats in demanding the investigation of fraud charges made against members of their party and the prosecution of all persons against whom evidence may be found. The Republican administration is pledged to honest elections. Gov. Hadley gave his personal promise to see that the ballot box is protected.

But it is not necessary to resort to charges of fraud in order to explain the Democratic disaster in St. Louis. Prohibition caused the tremendous registration. Thousands who had never voted were on the registration lists this year, and most of those who registered for the first time went to the polls and voted. The greater part of the new registration was Republican. The Republican party had a complete, strong, well-trained, active organization, every member of which enthusiastically worked for Republican success.

Chairman Shannon of the Democratic State Committee is in position to know what sort of work the local Democratic Committee did for the Democratic cause. What he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter about it follows:

> "We ought to have some help from the City Committee, but what could we expect from such an organization? It was not in evidence during the campaign and since the election there has been nothing to indicate its existence.
>
> "It was the duty of that organization to look out for fraud in the election and to have known exactly what was going on. You can't say that the Democrats even have a City Committee in St. Louis. By its inactivity it has demonstrated its non-existence."

Chairman Shannon's statement emphasizes the soundness of the Post-Dispatch's conclusion that much of the responsibility for Democratic failure and defeat in this city should be charged to the Democratic City Committee. The committee was subsidized to devote its time and energy to the senatorial contest. The members were self-appointed ward managers of the Francis campaign. The committeemen were too busy looking for the dollars to guard the ballot boxes.

The first duty of St. Louis Democrats is to reorganize their party committee.

The McKinley banquet brought out the gratifying fact that St. Louis, outside of the railroad squad in the City Hall, is now unanimous in opposition to the bridge arbitrary.

AGAINST 40-CENT BACON.

In Missouri outside of St. Louis, Democrats gained four members of the lower house of Congress. In St. Louis, they lost one. This makes a clear gain for Missouri Democrats of three members of the House of Representatives.

The significance is that in the next Congress, Missouri will be represented by two Democratic senators and thirteen Democratic and three Republican congressmen. In the last Congress, the representation was one Democratic and one Republican senator, ten Democratic and six Republican congressmen.

The changed representation is an effective protest against 40-cent bacon.

Undoubtedly a bill for the admission of New Jersey to the Union will find favorable consideration in the next House now that Jersey has proved herself capable of self-government.

"RED EMPIRE" MARRIAGES.

The late D. M. Parry, believing that Socialism meant state interference and coercion in all the affairs of life, wrote "The Red Empire," a romance picturing a condition of society in which the government did everything, even to the mating of young couples. At a certain age marriage was imperative, and in order to insure a standard of health and good looks, the strong were forced to marry the weak, and the ugly were compelled to wed with the beautiful.

This is rather a medical dream than a Socialistic ideal. It has frequently been advocated by doctors, the latest to bring it forward being Dr. G. Wilts Robinson, of Kansas City, before the Missouri Charities and Corrections Association. The old cry is again heard that "the marriage of unfit should be prohibited by law, and medical examinations should be imperative before marriage licenses are issued."

Given such state control of the marriage relation as is here contemplated, and the "Red Empire" as pictured by Parry would not be far away. It is just as important to prevent marriage of couples where it may be doubtful that the husband will be successful in business. Then it would follow that the state should look into the question of compatibility, religion and political views of the candidates for marriage. Height, weight, color of hair and eyes must of course be considered. The inevitable outcome must be complete control of matrimony by a sociological and medical autocracy.

The United States flag was insulted in Mexico and presently the natives there may spit on the Constitution and call the Supreme Court justices a bunch of fossils.

THE INNER PARK SYSTEM.

In connection with the announcement that the plan for the outer park system will be resubmitted at the spring election, it is fortunate that the city need not wait for further voting in carrying forward the great work of completing its inner park system.

The complete restoration of Forest Park is one highly important item of this work. The original forest conditions of the whole western quarter of the park are in danger of being lost and they will be lost unless systematic work is done to prevent it. If this work must go on for at least ten years to come, there is the more reason for greater energy in beginning it now.

Leaving out of consideration the system of parks already in existence, to be connected by King's highway boulevard, the whole city is heavily in debt to its eastern residence quarters for small parks which have not yet resulted from the prolonged discussion of the need for them.

As the Post-Dispatch has led in this discussion, the need has been acknowledged as manifest. The resulting benefits, aside from the increasing value lent to city life itself, will certainly appear in a lowered death rate.

The small residence parks of the eastern districts, where population is still excessive in many blocks, are life-savers. A national convention of experts in children's diseases is to be held soon, to study means of lowering the death rate among city children. No single means of doing this is likely to be found which will compare with the small "home park" in the so-called "slums." Every such park is a rescue station for children, who may have the hand of death already on them. Save the children!

Under the promise of a hard fight for the speakership, we suggest that Champ Clark provide himself with only one of the span of mules he proposes driving down Pennsylvania avenue, and match it up later, if necessary.

Mr. Ballinger has promised to do all he can to keep the prices of oil up for the benefit of the Oklahoma Indians. It is an altruistic scheme, but it seems to have been original with Johndee.

The Democratic City Committee may be an "invisible body," as State Chairman Shannon asserts, but he must admit that it has a well developed sense of touch.

If it was to be so soon done for the New Nationalism might well take a day off to wonder what it was begun for.

The two theatrical trusts having effected a combination, the restraint of trade will become more so if possible.

Mr. Taft has gone to Panama, which is not only true, but a very polite method of expressing it.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Out of a Job—Will the writer of letter with this signature please call on the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Initiative and Referendum.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

If this most popular boon to the people at large is to remain, it must not be intemperately used. A proposition once passed upon by popular vote should not be resubmitted until voters' sentiment changes by natural process. A period of 10 years (approximately one-third of a generation) would be about right to meet the changes of ideas due to progress. Incessant resubmission would make the initiative and referendum a nuisance and a farce. V. P. V. D.

Vulgar Plays.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

How many more of these debasing shows such as "The Girl in the Taxi," are to be permitted to flaunt before the theater-going public of this city? And that morality squad? What a farce! They left too early; they should have waited until the last act and it would have saved them the trouble of making a report. This purity-loving public of St. Louis turns with horror from a picture show film that is the least suggestive, yet without a qualm take their wives, daughters and sweethearts to see a play that is condemned as vulgar and indecent? Give us good wholesome shows and put a stop to these suggestive plays that are permitted to run in our best theaters. F. S. D.

Concerning the Aftermath.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Now that the battle is over and the field has been at least partially cleared of its debris, we can view the scene clearly and calmly consider the aftermath. Saving the anomalous and isolate instance of St. Louis, Republican derelicts bestrew almost the entire surface of the United States. A bloodless revolution has covered the arena with political corpses—wrecks of former potential Republican leaders who tampered with the tariff against the interests of the people. My view of the genesis of things as they are is something like this:

Republicanism begat high tariff.
High tariff begat trusts.
Trusts begat monopolies.
Monopolies begat high prices, and
High prices begat revolution.

It was the old fight renewed, of Democracy against plutocracy, and, of course, with a free field and no favor, Democracy won. Let it now proceed to keep on winning by carrying out the purpose of the election. SENEX.

Supporting the Symphony.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Eight minutes after the people from the Odeon arrived at the corner of Grand Avenue and Morgan a Hodiamont car arrived west bound. The car was already crowded. The register showed 76 fares. As many as could crowded in. This, I presume, is the United Railways' contribution to the support of the Symphony Society.

MUSIC LOVER.

Roosevelt Did It.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Roosevelt said many things in his speeches about the Democrats that were not true, which were applicable to his own party and not to the Democrats, and it looks as if the country understood it so from the outcome of the election all over the country. The men he made the fiercest attacks upon were elected by the largest majorities. His reception everywhere intoxicated him so that he seemed hardly responsible for what he said or did. His new nationalism didn't take; it was too imperialistic; there was too much jingoism about it to suit the American people. The Republicans may thank his majesty for their defeat; he did more to bring it about than any other man.

The American people do a great deal of thinking for themselves, and I'm glad of it. They have shown their supreme wisdom in the vote they have cast; they have shown very plainly that this is a government of the people and by the people. Let us nobly stand by the men who have been elected and hold up their hands in any good work they may do.

J. P. WALDEN.

FREE PASS DIES HARD.

From the Springfield Republican.

The free pass evil is dying hard in the West where it is most persistent, but it is dying. The railroad journals tell of the case of an Ogden merchant who obtained a pass from a subordinate official of the Southern Pacific to go to Reno, Nev., and return some time ago. He was arrested under the Hepburn interstate railroad act of 1906, and fined $200, besides having to pay his fare; and the Southern Pacific official was also arrested and is now out on bail awaiting trial. It should not take many examples like this to put an end to this species of grafting on the railroads at the expense of the general public.

THE SPHINX.

MR. TAFT'S DUTY.

From the New York World.

There is hope for Mr. Taft, however. A man of his character and ability, with two years yet to serve in the greatest of elective offices, is in a position to do important things if he will. He has made mistakes which can be retrieved. He has been guided by false or unwise advisers who can be discarded. He has excused and apologized for iniquities which can be denounced. He can put aside resolutely the idea that he owes anything to anybody except the people of the United States, who placed him where he is. In a word, he can recast and remake his administration to the strengthening of his own fame and to the decided advantage of his countrymen.

This can be done by prompt and generous recognition on his part of the manifest will of the people. They want reform. They want justice. They want economy. They want peace. They want an orderly enforcement of the laws against individual offenders. They want relief from extortionate tariff taxation. They want light upon the sugar frauds, the Panama scandal, the Philippine land job, the Alaska exploitation, the Ballinger muddle and the corrupt influences that mark up tariffs when parties and candidates promise that they shall be marked down.

To call the new Congress in extra session as soon as the old Congress shall have expired and to co-operate with it in the promotion of true reform is Mr. Taft's high privilege and duty.

THE SECOND HENRY GEORGE.

From the Kansas City Star.

One of the strong men who will enter Congress as the result of last Tuesday's election will be Henry George of New York, who will replace W. S. Bennet. Like his famous father, George is an enemy to every form of special privilege, and like him he is a strong advocate of the tax on land values. His writings have shown a man of keen mind and high ideals. It's a mighty good thing for Congress to obtain recruits of the caliber of this New York progressive.

UNDERSTANDABLE.

From the New York Globe.

No election result in many years has conveyed as clear a lesson. The American people want peace in business. They ask to be let alone as they pursue the sober duty of making a living. They are sick and tired of an everlasting noisemaking and, recognizing in Col. Roosevelt the chief noisemaker, they fell on him it's all most simple and understandable.

Has Been Handed a Lemon.

Many people think that President Taft's square deal from the square dealer has been about the size and consistency of the inside of a doughnut.

Will Overrule the Decision.

From the New York World.

What's the use of Judge Baldwin's suing Mr. Roosevelt for slander? The Colonel won't accept the decision of the Court.

A Perfectly Corking Time.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

Such strenuous times in Portugal, the new regime must have written to ask T. R. all about running a republic.

GERMANY AND COLUMBUS.

Dr. George Gellhorn, a St. Louis physician, told at a recent dinner at the Artists' Guild a story of personal experience in Germany.

The Doctor was over there last Summer, and one day he took one of the long German excursion trains which run to the mountains. He was in a hot and stuffy compartment, and as the day aged his discomfort increased. He grew very hungry, and he craved a drink of German beer. The coaches were so singularly uniform that he hesitated to leave the train at any of the stations, not being sure that he had any means of identifying his car. He spoke of this to fellow-passengers, and one of them finally observed that it ought not to be a hard matter for him, an American, to find his coach again, inasmuch as it was numbered 1492—the year that Columbus discovered America.

"This was a good idea," the Doctor says, "and at the next station I left the train. I had a glass of beer and a frankfurter, and retraced my steps to the platform considerably cooled and refreshed. The long overland train was standing there, and I set out for my coach. I had not been at that very long before I discovered that I had forgotten when Columbus discovered America. Never as firmly fixed in my mind as it is with persons born in the United States, it had chosen this critical occasion to escape me. The train was likely to pull out at any moment, and my situation was extremely precarious. I dashed at the person nearest to me, evidently a citizen of the town.

"'Will you kindly tell me when Columbus discovered America?' I asked.

"He looked at me in amazement. Evidently he had never heard of either America or Columbus. Having no time to waste with him, I dashed on to the next person. He said he did not know. The next three or four regarded me blankly, as one who had probably lost his wits. I was by this time considerably excited, and rushing this way and that, imploring someone to tell me what I wanted to know. Finally I espied a German policeman. This was a very proud and no doubt learned person whose duty it was to supply information as much as to keep the peace of the town. I was by this time desperate.

"'For God's sake, when did Columbus discover America?' I asked him.

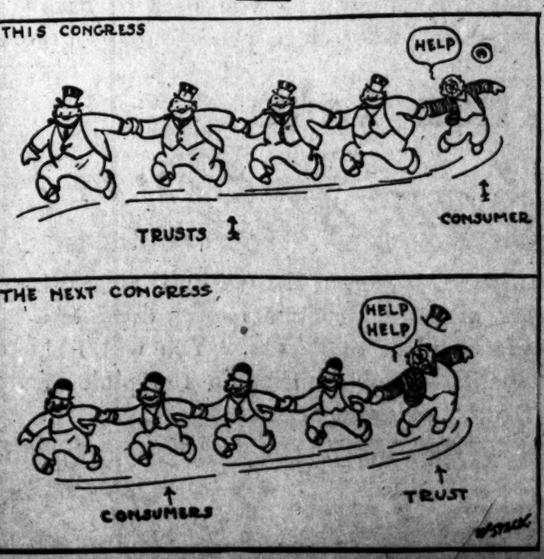
"He regarded me with the heaviness of an ox. If America had, indeed, been discovered at all, he had heard nothing of it. The train started, and I made a last dash along the platform, seeking to discover something by which I might identify my coach. Suddenly I saw it—1492! It came back to me like a flash. I dashed into my apartment and sat down—blowing.

"'I see you found it all right,' one of my fellow-travelers said.

"'Yes,' I said. 'Thanks for the tip.'"

Chicago continues to justify John Hay's assertion that it is the most American thing about America. A Chicago man has just announced to this practical country that a vacuum cleaner takes fleas off a dog.

St. Louis will continue the nearest adequate oasis to the prohibition South.



NOTES AND QUERIES.

Answers to Questions From Readers of the Post-Dispatch.

IGNORAMUS.—J. A. Patten, "Wheat King," lives in Evanston, Ill.

EMMA.—Your husband is brother-in-law to your sister's husband.

CICERO.—Published for the trade means published for booksellers.

C. H.—Stepbrother and stepsister may marry, but not half brother and half sister.

J. E. B.—To remove leather stains from your hands you might try rubbing with alcohol.

BOB.—The Hansom Cab Co. passed into the hands of the Mound City Livery Co. in 1888.

PEGGIE.—Legal holidays are fixed by each State for itself. There is no national holiday.

CONSTANT READER. — Simply write "Prosecuting Attorney, Clayton, St. Louis County."

P. M.—Don't ask nasty questions. You will find your answer on page 21 of the Standard Dictionary, Public Library.

VIRGINIA.—We have no record of temperance society people who touch liquors in Paris. Some of them certainly do not.

CHARLES PRUSKA.—Probably the Provident Association, 2251 Locust, would give you the information you ask. Phone or write.

L.—St. Louis, 687,029; St. Joseph, 77,403; State of Arkansas, estimated, 1,800,000.—census returns not given at date of this writing, Nov. 10.

SEIFFERT.—They will tell you all about widow pensions in Room 208, old postoffice, Third and Olive. Write to the Pension Examiners there.

CYNTHIA.—Bathing with cold tea is said to darken lashes and strengthen weak eyes; or get pencil at drug store. Vaseline sometimes promotes growth.

IN DOUBT.—If wife married you when she had a living husband, of whom you had never heard, the marriage must be annulled before you can legally marry again. File a petition in the Circuit Court.

REAL ESTATE.—Books on real estate law: "Treatise on Real Property," by Tiedeman, $6. Published by Thomas Low, St. Louis. "Real Estate Man's Guide," by Terrill, $2. Published by Cadogan-Hatcher Co., Quincy, Ill.

IGNORANT.—We do not learn of any chemical having the same alkaline cleansing properties as salts of tartar that will remain dry in powder form, nor of anything better than a glass-stoppered bottle to keep moisture from it.

MRS. R.—Have a talk with the Circuit Court Clerk, at the Court House, Broadway and Chestnut. You have been greatly wronged and have acted a noble part. Don't think of doing anything desperate; there may be better days for you.

C. A. B.—When Christmas is on a week day, Christmas church services are held on the Sunday before or the Sunday following Christmas Eve. Christmas night or the night following Christmas is devoted to the children of the congregation.

WILLIAM A.—(Supplemental answer.) Your pumpkin might be a vegetable marrow produced freely in England. It grows very prank, with yellow blossoms, large foliage; fruit sometimes green-striped, at other times a creamy green, like watermelons. Turns yellow when ripe. The shell is eaten and pith and seeds discarded. Always cooked.

POST-DISPATCH CUSTOMER.—Sufficient exercise to enable you to digest your food well, with peas, beans, oatmeal, whole wheat bread, oils, butter, cream, sugar and plenty of water (not at meals), ought to fatten you. Have no worry, and enough sleep. Practice deep breathing of pure air and chew food thoroughly. It must be admitted that some persons do not fatten much on any diet.

SUSIE.—Peanut salad: One cup hulled peanuts (crushed), two cups celery cut fine, one dozen pitted "baby" olives. Mix well. Add sufficient mayonnaise dresing and serve on lettuce leaf. Peanut butter: Roast peanuts carefully, slipping off the skins, put through the meat grinder, and then moisten sufficiently with the best table oil to a thick paste. Mix in salt with the oil, being careful not to use much. Pack in glasses or small open-mouthed bottles, and exclude air.

MARTIN.—The Unitarian Calendar says: The fact that William H. Taft is a member of All Souls' Unitarian Church in Washington has aroused opposition among some of the religiously bigoted. It is charged that, as a Unitarian, he denies the divinity of Christ. This charge is false. No one has a right to declare Mr. Taft's personal view of Jesus. When he joined the Unitarian Church he was not asked one word about his religious beliefs. No one joining our church has ever been asked his belief about Jesus. He may believe in His divinity or His humanity. Most of us believe in the unity of God and the humanity of Jesus, but we welcome to full membership, as does every Unitarian church, a believer in the deity of Jesus and in the Trinity if he does not insist in compelling our belief.

ANXIOUS.—Morphine habit (a physician's method): Make a water solution of morphine to last a week, and of such strength that the patient by taking a teaspoon dose the same number of times a day that he usually takes a drug will give him his maximum daily consumption. Add one drop tincture nux vomica for each teaspoonful, and direct a teaspoonful at his usual time of taking the powdered drug, with the sugestion that it is a better preparation and will do him more good than the powder. The next week reduce the powder used by about one-tenth of the amount, and continue reducing the amount used weekly by an amount so small that the patient will not miss it, keeping the bitter taste about the same by adding more nux vomica as the morphine is reduced. There should be good hygiene, nutritious food and out-of-door living, and patient should be interested in some kind of work.

ANXIOUS.—Birthday party contests: Spread a sheet on the floor and, having blindfolded two players, seat them on the floor facing each other. Give to each a spoon and saucer containing some dry food, such as ground popcorn or wheat berries, and let each attempt to feed the other. The "blind leading the blind" is nothing in comparison to the "blind feeding the blind," and shouts of laughter will follow their futile efforts to feed and be fed. Mouth-Catching: Furnish each person with a small cracker or piece of candy, and let each throw it up and catch it in his or her mouth, a prise again being in order for the most skilful. Other contests are carrying a potato on a spoon the length of the room, dropping peanuts into a small mouthed jug, the first to be able to whistle after eating a couple of dry crackers, or threading wet squash or pumpkin seeds with a needle and thread.

HOUSEKEEPER.—Mrs. Lincoln's mince pie meat: One cup chopped meat, one cup raisins, one cup currants, one-fourth cup citron, one cup brown sugar, one-fourth cup molasses, three cups chopped apples, one cup meat liquor, one tablespoonful salt, one tablespoonful cinnamon, half teaspoonful cloves, one lemon, one orange, one cup boiled cider. Select a piece of beef from the neck or the round. It should be juicy, lean, with a little nice fat. Cook it in boiling water until tender enough to pierce with a fork. Let the water boil down until there is about a pint to a pound. Let the meat cool in the liquor and when cold chop it fine with the fat also. Pare, core and chop the apple. Seed the raisins and carefully clean the currants. Shave the citron in thin slices. Use the grated rind and the juice of the lemon and orange. Measure the cloves sparingly and the salt generously. Mince pies are often spoiled by too little salt and too much cloves. If boiled cider cannot be obtained use vinegar or more lemon and water. Mix all the materials thoroughly, and cook until the apples look clear. Seal in glass jars and use.

Be to My Faults a Little Blind

A Hasty Temper Sometimes Covers Nerves That Are Tangled Wires. Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Ethelyn Huston.

WHEN a popular song was evolved about the "olden days" it was supposed to be, and was, funny. But there was a ray of truth among the bubbles. And in the days when children were obedient, when grown folks were courteous, when serving folks were respectful, the little maids who are now our grandmothers worked wonderful samplers with the motto: "Be to my virtues very kind, and to my faults a little blind."

We need to be "very kind." The world needs kindness more than ever before, and it needs kindness more than anything else. Life's problems are complex, the pace breathless, our nerves naked. And we indignantly demand of others consistency and perfection, forgetting that we are rarely consistent and never perfect ourselves.

If the man or woman you have married became afflicted with a weak spine, the poor deformed body would wake in you a very passion of pity and tenderness. You would shield the unlovely deformity from strange and curious eyes, and your every word and gesture would be protective, gentle, patient.

Yet the same man or woman, afflicted with a twist of temper, a flaw of character, an annoying idiosyncrasy, arouses your anger only.

Why?

The unlovely little spiritual deformity is just as pitiful, just as undesired, as is the poor twisted body.

And a hasty temper sometimes covers nerves that are as tangled wires; a moody face sometimes hides a heart that is fighting all the legions of darkness and despair; a hasty word is sometimes as the bitterness of Dead Sea apples on the lips that have spoken.

We cannot know. And we dare not judge. Our own characters are not immune while life stirs our pulses. They are solvent, not fixed. The cool, regulated, respectable life of today may plunge into the vortex of stress and travail tomorrow. And where are the nerves and virtues and respectability then?

They are fighting a fierce battle that will leave scars and unloveliness. And we, then, may need sorely the very kindness we now impatiently withheld.

The little sampler of our grandmothers' should be above every office desk and dressing-table, in clubhouse and factory, in home and shop. We need to be "very kind," because life is unkind. We are all on the inexorable treadmill, each with his burden. And the burden weighs down alike on shoulders and heart.

And because the treadmill never stops; because the tired feet must go on and on till they can slip off at last into the friendly darkness; because each of us, looking upon what we would have done and have been, sees failure writ large—let us, at least, be "very kind."

With the little deformity of character we can be pitiful and patient. Where "the hand of the blotter shook" there was perhaps a reason beyond our very limited comprehension.

And it remains for us to learn of that wise and beauty-loving little people—the Japanese—to build loveliness even out of defect. From them we have had to learn humbly what no other race saw—that there was a wonderful loveliness to be found in an angular little spray of blossoms, in a stunted little tree.

And those to whom we are cruel, whom we hurt with our criticism, were made so by the great Artist and are part of "the scheme of things." It is not for us to understand. It is for us to be patient and to be kind.

Sirens Who Have Changed History

No. 9—Helen of Troy, Whom Homer Made Immortal.

HELEN OF ARGOS was the fairest woman in all Greece.

Kings and mighty warriors sought her hand. Tyndarus, King of Sparta, her father, feared that her accepted husband might find himself in peril at the hands of his less lucky rivals and that civil war might follow. So he bound all her suitors by a solemn oath to abide by Helen's choice, and even to guard her husband from all future foes.

Helen married Menelaus, one of the many petty rulers whose realms split up the territory of Greece. The disappointed lovers kept the first part of their oath. The time was at hand when they must keep the second.

Tyndarus died and Menelaus became King of Sparta. Three years after his marriage he welcomed to his court a traveling Prince, Paris, the son of the King of Ilium (Troy).

Paris was young, handsome—a typical dime-novel "lady's man." Menelaus was rough, uncouth, middle-aged. Helen and Paris fell in love at first sight. One night they eloped in the latter's ship and sailed to Troy.

Then it was that Menelaus reminded the other suitors of their oath to protect him. The Trojans refused to give Helen up. The only thing left was to recover her by force. The suitors (some of them most unwillingly) consented to attack Troy.

The expedition (a host of warriors in nearly 1200 ships) set forth for the Trojan shores, led by Agamemnon, King of Mycenae and brother of Menelaus.

Troy was besieged by the Greeks. For 10 years the war waged. The Trojans, looking on Helen as the cause of their troubles, forgot the pride they had once felt in her beauty and grew to hate her. Paris, too, proved himself a pitiful coward and weakling when it came to actual warfare.

Altogether Helen began to repent of her rashness and sin. But it was too late for repentance to undo the mischief. Thousands of brave men on both sides had already been slain.

At last Paris, too, was killed in battle. Helen promptly married his brother, Delphobus, and the war went on. When the Greeks, by strategem, captured the city, Helen sought to curry favor with the victors by betraying her husband's hiding place to them.

She also managed, by beauty and fascination, to win Menelaus' forgiveness and to return to Sparta with him as his queen and wife. But the Greeks loathed her and whispered that she was a sorceress. After Menelaus' death the women of Sparta are said to have murdered her.

This in brief is the story of Helen. Much of it is now said to be legendary, but the ancient Greeks accepted it as history. Homer, in his "Iliad," has made Helen and the Siege of Troy immortal, weaving into his poem a mass of frankly mythical characters and happenings.

Birds That Dance Real Figures.

AT first two birds approach one another, bowing profoundly and treading heavily. They swagger about each other, nodding and courtesying solemnly, then suddenly begin to fence a little, crossing bills and whetting them together, sometimes with a whistling sound, meanwhile pecking and dropping stiff little bows. All at once one lifts its closed wing and nibbles at the feathers beneath. Then the first bird bows once and, pointing its beak straight upward, rises on its toes, puffs out its breast and utters a prolonged nasal Ah-h-h-h, with a rapidly rising inflection, reminding one a little of a goose and, more, of a disconsolate calf. While this song is being uttered the companion loudly and rapidly snaps its bill. Often both birds raise their heads in air and emit their ridiculous groan, this figure representing in some cases the grand finale of several dances. When they have finished they begin bowing to each other again, rapidly and alternately, and presently repeat the performance, the birds after reversing their role. The movements are executed in perfect unison, with a sort of military precision, and this fact much enhances the extraordinary effect. The pictures convey but a poor impression of the actual scene—the wonderful sky and sunshine, the spotless, shining plumages and the droll cries. While standing in one spot I have seen over 25 couples dancing at once.

It is amusing to watch three engage in the dance, one attempting to divide its attention between two. This odd bird starts by bowing to the first partner, whom he suddenly forsakes with a final deprecatory nod and takes up the thread of the minuet with the second. The latter is ready to join in because he has been keeping up a sort of mark time in the movements. Thus the single bird switches back and forth for a while until he shows a preference for one and ignores the other, who ambles off to seek another partner.

Occasionally, while "cake-walking," one will lightly pick up a twig and present it to his mate, who does not accept the gift, however, but thereupon returns the compliment, when straws are promptly dropped, and all hands begin bowing and walking about as if their very lives depended upon it.

Several times when a number were busily engaged in their antics I have walked carefully among them, and have begun to bow very low, imitating as nearly as possible their movements. They would stop and gaze at me in astonishment, but recovering their usual equanimity almost at once would gravely return a few bows and walk around me in a puzzled manner, as if wondering what sort of a creature I was. They would do this only when interrupted during a dance.—W. K. Fisher in Collier's.

The Present.

DON'T wait, dear friend, don't wait till when
The hand of death shall touch my brow,
'Twill be too late to knock me then—
Do it now!

Don't wait until my five-foot-ten
Is laid away. Dear friend, or how Can you expect to do me then?
Do me now!

Don't wait till I'm beyond your ken
With angel folk—for you'll allow
You cannot get my nanny then—
Get it now!

For the Glory of Monsignor

By John T. McIntyre.

A BARB of sunlight entered at a tall, stained-glass window; Riley followed its multicolored track across the church ceiling to the center, where a mighty, flame-ringed Michael drove a chain-bound Lucifer before him with a sword of fire. Then the light glanced along the bronze chain which held pendant the ruby lamp that burned always before the high altar.

Link by link the boy's eyes followed it downward. As they reached the little lamp an odd fancy came to him, and he smiled. It were as though the warm-colored rays had centered themselves upon the eager young face of the monsignor. Riley leaned toward Hopkins, who sat in the pew by his side, and whispered:

"He looks fine, don't he?"

"Great," answered Hopkins, unqualifiedly.

Father Augustine, glittering and sonorous, intoned the mass; the deacons who assisted him wore shining vestments. The altar rail and the space within were thronged with acolytes in crimson and gold; pungent incense rolled upward with the solemn sounding Latin; the burnished altar vessels, swaying censers and tall candlesticks gleamed in the arching lights.

For this was the "last" mass—the service of panoply and color, of organ peals and solemn responses, of pomp and parade among those who filled the pews. Riley shifted a big brass-clasped prayer book uncomfortably; the splendor oppressed him, and a pucker of discontent appeared among the splay of freckles across his nose.

"Were you ever at a solemn high before?" he inquired lowly.

"No," answered Hopkins, "and I don't like them much, do you?"

"Not very," said Riley.

But when monsignor arose their interest increased; for monsignor, through a portrait of him that hung in the fourth class, was like an old acquaintance.

"But he's too young for the job," Riley told his friend from behind one hand. "I was afraid of that, kind of."

As he stood for a moment in his plain white surplice, brought into strong relief against the gorgeous trappings of the mass, monsignor did look slim and youthful; and the old name flew, in whispers, among the people who had known him as a boy.

"Jimmie Brooks!"

It was only a breath; but the crimson and white clad acolytes caught it, as did the deacons in the shining vestments. When it reached Father Augustine he frowned his displeasure; for it was not at all the effect he desired.

But monsignor smiled. An eager, boyish look came into his eyes, for all their settled sadness; and his fine, slim hands went out in an impulsive gesture of greeting. It was all very touching and very pretty; the congregation nodded their heads kindly to each other and smiled also; for they were pleased indeed to see Jimmie, and right gladly would they listen to his talk.

"But look at Father Augustine," whispered Riley. "He ain't in right, somehow."

The rector sat fuming in the great chair at the side of the altar; his face was red; his big chest bulged stormily. Decidely it was not the effect that he had desired.

"It was monsignor that should have arisen, not Jimmie Brooks," he told Father Shannon, who sat beside him. "It should have been monsignor, undoubtedly—the brilliant orator, the famous seminarist, the man who won his present title when he was thirty, who, in a few weeks more, will be a bishop.

Father Augustine was a practical man and knew his people. A genial feeling of renewed comradery would never induce them to contribute enough to finish the new school building; they required to be awed, dazzled, swept off their feet. That was why he had asked the brilliant ecclesiastic to visit St. Michael's in the first place. He had never dreamed that Jimmie Brooks would be so remembered.

The new schoolhouse had been well planned, but badly financed; as a scholastic establishment it was meant to distance any other in the archdiocese, but when scarcely half built the funds ran out, and to Father Augustine's indignant astonishment the parish silently and steadfastly refused to come to his aid. The thing was disgraceful, both to them and to him; it positively showed that they were without parochial pride, and the knowing fear had come that people were beginning to question the soundness of his own design. Deep in this dilemma he had called monsignor to his assistance from a distance where he was stationed. Loyal to the old school, monsignor had responded.

And his appeal was beautiful! Even Father Augustine admitted that. Nothing had ever been previously spoken within the four walls of St. Michael's that possessed the finish or the polish of this utterance. But when all was over and the contributions counted, it was noticed with dismay that the congregation had not thawed in any pronounced degree.

But, of course, neither Hopkins nor Riley was aware of this; to them the occasion seemed like a triumph for monsignor.

"He can hand out the language, all right," admired Riley, as he sprinkled himself at the stone font in the vestibule. "And maybe his mother won't be glad when she hears about this."

"Let's go around that way," proposed Hopkins eagerly. "We'll be the first to tell her."

The theatrical desire to be involved in "situations" was always strong in Hopkins; but in harmless instances like this Riley usually overlooked it.

"All right," he agreed. "Come on."

They made their way through the thronging habitues of the "late mass," and along the churchyard wall. A Sunday quiet was on the streets; now and then a belated milkman scurried along, or a woman was seen sweeping a sidewalk. At length they came to a neat, old-fashioned house that had a porch and a honeysuckle, and Tessie Burke was surreptitiously polishing the brass bell knob as they entered at the swinging gate. She looked up, embarrassed.

"Ain't I awful to be doing this on Sunday?" she said. "But it's not so much because I wanted to do it as because I wanted to be out here."

Tess was about the same age as Riley. Despite her turned-up nose she was pretty. Her hair was wonderfully thick and dark, elaborately arranged and stuck full of combs; she was what Hopkins called a "swell dresser;" also, her manner was peculiarly and delightfully grown up.

"What do you want out here?" inquired Hopkins, as he twirled his cap in his hands. "Was you waiting for somebody?"

"Yes; somebody from church," answered Tess. "I just wish I could have gone so that I could tell Mrs. Brooks about it."

Riley leaned carelessly against the rail of the porch.

"We was there," stated he. "Wasn't we, Hoppy?"

"Sure," corroborated the latter. "We went away up front, and Dr. Griffith give us seats in his pew when he seen us. It's got cushions to kneel on, and it feels great!"

Tess was delighted.

"Oh, I'm glad you saw him," she said. Both hands went up and fluttered among the many combs, caressingly; then she smoothed her frock and added: "Come on in; and you must tell his mother every single thing."

The house was filled with prim, shining, old-fashioned furniture; the walls were covered with heavily framed prints. Mrs. Brooks sat in the wheeled chair which all the neighborhood knew so well; her hands were folded patiently in her lap; the gentle old face and the smooth, white hair were lighted by a wandering sun ray. She smiled kindly as the three entered; for she loved all children.

"Good morning," said Riley.

"Good morning," said Hopkins.

This was always their salutation when they visited Mrs. Brooks; then, as was the custom, they seated themselves in two stiffly upholstered chairs, holding their caps in their hands.

"They were at solemn high mass," said Tess, eagerly. "And they heard monsignor!"

A faint pink crept into the old lady's cheeks, the patient hands fluttered for a moment, and then lay still again.

"Did you like him?" she asked softly.

"He was great," announced Riley. "He can put it all over Father Augustine, or anybody else."

"And he looks just like the picture of him that Brother Clement's got in the fourth," said Hopkins. "I knowed him as soon as he came out on the altar."

"He spoke well, then?" And Mrs. Brooks' voice shook a little.

Riley nodded energetically.

"Immense," stated he. "And as the people came out they were all talking about him—how they knowed him when he was a boy as big as me; and how he must have a fine ejucation to have them want to make him a bishop."

A look of joy came into the gentle old face.

"Oh, I'm glad," she said; "I'm glad. For my boy is to be a bishop, you know," proudly. "A bishop!"

"I seen a bishop once," volunteered Hopkins. "But he was kind of fat, and didn't look like monsignor a bit."

"A bishop! A bishop!" the old lady continued to murmur, as though to herself. "My Jimmie will be a bishop."

"She keeps saying that all the time," Tess whispered to the boys. "They are sorry they told her about it now; for if anything happened, and monsignor wasn't made a bishop, she'd die."

Just then Mrs. Brooks' two maiden sisters came in, fresh from "late" mass, full of enthusiasm and bristling with adjectives; so the boys took their leave, accompanied by Tess, who had just run in to be with Mrs. Brooks while her sisters were gone.

"I just think monsignor is grand," said Tess. "He looks awful kind—just like his mother."

There were big tears in her eyes as she spoke; and Riley watched them tremble upon her thick lashes with much interest.

"What is?" he asked her.

Tess looked about. There were little, slowly moving clumps of old people upon the street, who had been last to leave the church. But no one was near enough to hear.

"Old Mrs. Brooks told me this, one day when we were all alone," said Tess mysteriously. "And I never breathed a word about it to anybody but Sister Agnes and my mother. So you musn't tell any one."

"Sure not," said Hopkins.

"Well, monsignor and Anna Dawson were engaged; and when she died he just gave up everything, went into the seminary and was made a priest."

The two boys looked at each other in silence; the matter opened up new vistas of thought to them—perplexing, chaotic thoughts that would require time and much devotion.

"I don't remember Anna Dawson, do you?" spoke Hopkins, after a time.

"No," answered Riley; "but I heard about her lots of times."

"So did I. My father knowed her; he works for her father."

This seemed to invite new thoughts. For a space there was silence; they repassed the church, and both took off their caps. Then Riley said:

"Old man Dawson's a fierce old guy!"

"Maybe he ain't!" agreed Hopkins.

Dawson! Every one knew him. He controlled the big leather plant which employed hundreds in the district—a squat, powerful man with a big, gray-covered head, a raucous voice and a face of granite. Anna, a quiet-eyed, gentle-mannered girl, had been his only child—his only kin; and she had been idolized by him. And when he lost her it was as though he had been struck with madness. He permitted them to bear her into the church that the mass might be chanted over her, because he knew that she would have wished it so; and he consented to her being laid in the little churchyard because her mother was there.

But he refused to be present; raging in his own house, he reviled all religion, he hurled bitter mockery against a Providence that permitted a world full of iniquity and slew one so gentle and so good.

And from that time Dawson had continued so; his rage flowed fresher with the passage of the years. No one visited him, and he lived almost alone; on the street he was avoided, for he always went by as though masked with stone; in the works he spoke with the voice of doom.

"My father says he thinks Mr. Dawson is off his nanny," said Hopkins.

"He's got a lot of money, though," answered Riley. "And that big factory must be rolling up a lot more."

The drawing hour was usually a quiet one; and Brother Clement, after a little, seated himself at a window overlooking the churchyard and read Marcus Aurelius, muttering the sounding Latin below his breath. He had not gone through more than a page or two, however, when Brother Thomas came in from the second to borrow a box of chalk. The desk at which Riley and Hopkins sat was on the extreme end, near the window; and with their heads bent over their work, the two heard what passed.

Brother Thomas lowered his voice.

"I understand that Father Augustine does not consider that monsignor helped us a particle," said he.

"Not a bit," answered Brother Clement, positively. "And he has hurt himself a great deal."

Brother Thomas' round face expressed his astonishment.

"Why, how does his failure to get the money to finish the new school building hurt him?"

"Father Augustine puts it very succinctly: A bishop is not only required to be a devout and learned man. He must have the ability to do things, the magnetism to compel others. This matter is a good test of monsignor's capabilities in that direction. Let him fail to succeed upon this mission, as we might call it, and he'll never be a bishop."

Love and Matrimony

Advice on Affairs of the Heart, Written for the Post-Dispatch

By BETTY VINCENT.

DEAR young people, I receive many letters asking how you may "win back" persons whom you love. Some desolate John writes me:

"I quarreled with my sweetheart and now I see I was altogether in the wrong. What shall I do to win her back?"

Or else some tearful Jane will write to me:

"My fiance and I had a few words and we have parted. Now, I have learned I was too hasty in my judgment, and I want to win him back. How can I do so?"

My dears, there is something better than "winning people back." Do not let them go, in the first place. If you care for them, pause and consider before you utter hasty words that may mean a parting of the ways. Do not accuse the man or girl you care for of all sorts of faults which may only exist in your jealous brain.

Quarrels rankle, no matter how freely forgiven. So when you love some one, dear young people, try to avoid the situation which necessitates "winning them back."

She Likes Him.

F. M. F. writes: "There is a young man living in my neighborhood whom I think a great deal of. How can I appeal to him to find out what he thinks of me?"

You cannot "appeal" to a young man to find out what he thinks of you. If he likes you he will either tell you so or his actions will show it.

It Is Her Cousin.

H. F. writes: "I have gone out frequently with a cousin of mine, who seems to think a great deal of me and consequently thinks it proper for him to kiss me when he leaves me. You have given such good advice to others, you would be doing me a great favor if you will advise me on this subject."

If your cousin were a great deal older than you are and kissed you on meeting or leaving you, it might be proper enough. But I think from what you say in your letter it would be better if you merely shook hands with him on parting.

To Apologize.

C. F. L. writes: "I was in love with a young man but two months ago we had a quarrel. He spoke in a rude manner and since then I have not spoken to him. He owes me an apology, and even though I should never see him again, I want that apology. Would it be proper for me to write and ask him to apologize?"

Simply ignore the young man. If he does not know enough to apologize it is not your place to write him.

When He Does Not Propose.

DEAR GIRLS—It is one thing for a young man to hint that he loves you, and act as though he loves you and yet not tell you that he does.

Never take too seriously the attentions of a young man who implies a great deal but commits himself to nothing.

There are plenty of men with whom an attitude of love making is an actual habit. In speaking to all women their voices have a tone of tenderness which means no more when addressed to one woman than to another.

I am not trying to say that a perpetual attitude of love toward all women is praiseworthy in any man. A man who implies he loves every woman he meets is even more despicable than the woman who flirts with every man. I am merely telling you not to take a man of this type too seriously.

There is just one way to be sure a man loves you and wants to marry you. When he does he will tell you so, you may be sure of that.

Speaks Unkindly.

A. D. L. writes: "I have been calling frequently upon a young lady for the past few years and I admire her very much. She says she likes me and I really believe she does, but she has a very sharp way of speaking and often says unkind things to me. What shall I do?"

Tell her frankly of her fault, and if you really care for her and she likes you, help her to overcome it.

Did Not Write.

E. L. writes: "I met a young lady and was granted permission to call. She said she would write and tell me what evening she would be at home, but I have never heard from her. I wrote and reminded her, but she did not answer my letters. What can I do?"

There is nothing more you can do, unless you meet the young woman again, by chance. And then if a suitable opening occurs you can remind her of her promise.

IMPROVED YALE ELEVEN AROUSES OLD ELI'S HOPES

New Haven Players Show Better Form, Following Defeat by Brown.

PRINCETON CONFIDENT

"This Is a Tiger Year," Shout Nassau's Jubilant Undergraduates.

YALE ASKS 2 TO 1 ODDS; TIGER MONEY VERY SCARCE

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12, THE Tiger squad arrived in town this morning from their sojourn in Lakewood, where they spent the last few days in final preparations for the big contest with Yale. The weather this morning is just right for football, cool and snappy. While the lineup has not been officially announced by the coaches, it is almost certain that the first eleven men to face Yale this afternoon will be as follows:

White, left end; Brown, left tackle, Wilson, left guard; Bluethenthal, center; McCormick, right guard; McGregory, right tackle; Dunlap, right end; Ballou, quarterback; Pendleton, left half; Sparks, right half; Capt. Hart, fullback.

Betting on the teams is not very conspicuous. There is very little Yale money in sight and what there is is asking 5 to 1 odds. While the Tiger supporters are enthusiastic they realize they are playing Yale and they will not eagerly take money at these figures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—All roads will lead to Princeton today, for every Yale and Princeton alumnus and undergraduate, who possibly can make the trip to see the old rivals meet in their annual football battle will. Thousands of others, adherents of the Blue and the orange and black, as well as those interested in spectacular football, will make the trip to the quiet little Jersey town to see the game on Osborne Field.

Accommodations for a crowd of 40,000 have been provided, and it is expected that every one of the seats in the tiered stands rising up from the gridiron will be filled. The usual reservations have been made for the cheering squads of the two colleges and the battle cries of Yale and Princeton will ring far out over the Jersey meadows.

Yale Greatly Improved.

Even last night Princeton presented an abnormal appearance. The vanguard of Princeton and Yale alumni and undergraduates swooped down on the town and virtually took possession of it. Thousands more will arrive on special trains and by automobile today.

When the official whistle starts the game the two elevens will begin their struggle, each confident of victory. Despite the fact that their record for the season is by no means an enviable one, the Yale players have shown wonderful improvement, according to reports from New Haven, since the overwhelming defeat by Brown last week.

Princeton has the confidence born of a victorious season. Not an opponent has crossed the goal line defended by the Tigers, and while Princeton has been pushed hard several times to win, the orange and black players and coach think the team is in good enough shape now to send the bulldog back to New Haven a chastened animal.

Tigers Last Won in 1903.

For six successive years Princeton has failed to defeat Yale. With the exception of the no-score tie in 1908, each year has witnessed a victory for the Blue. Princeton's only victory in 10 years was scored in 1903, when the Tiger thrashed the Bulldog by a score of 11 to 6. And so, while Princeton men are chanting "This is Princeton Year" Yale men are equally confident that the Blue will register another victory today, or at least hold the orange and black to a no-score tie.

Where Princeton has scored 98 points to its opponent's nothing, Yale has tallied only 85 points and the opponents of the Blue have scored 36. Yale, in addition to having been beaten by West Point and Brown, was held to a no-score tie by Vanderbilt. Princeton's closest call of the year came in the Lafayette game, which was won on a field goal by Pendelton. Carlisle and Dartmouth each held Princeton to a single touchdown.

Dope Tells Little.

Holy Cross is the only team played by both Yale and Princeton this year. Yale defeated the Worcester eleven by a score of 12 to 0 early in the season; Princeton won from the same team last week by a score of 17 to 0. So, as far as comparative records are concerned, the seeker for the winner has little "dope" to depend on.

And for that matter while the experts think Princeton the logical favorite, the Yale eleven which will face the Tigers is an entirely different team from the one which went down to defeat last Saturday before Brown, according to the Blue coaches. With Kilpatrick back at his end position, and another strong player at the other end of the wing, Yale looks for a different story this afternoon.

Pendleton, of Princeton, is a host in himself and must be reckoned with, but Yale looks for her two ends to check any advances of the speedy Tiger back. As to picking the winner—well, that is left to the "experts" and the enthusiasts. This afternoon will tell the tale.

Britton Defeats Keyes.

WRAY'S COLUMN

WHILE in Chicago Bobby Wallace called upon Ban Johnson.

The act, to many, is significant, taken in connection with the talk of Wallace's accepting the position vacated by Jack O'Connor. It suggests that Wallace is up for inspection, examination and cross-examination by the absolute despot of the American League—B. B. Johnson.

Very little happens in the American League that Ban B. has not put hand and seal to. For example, it was after conferring with Ban Johnson that Howell and O'Connor were asked to quit the St. Louis club. Apparently Ban B. is about to pass upon candidates for managership of the Browns, before they can be approved.

Johnson a Real Czar.

JOHNSON is a wonderful force—for good—in baseball. His opinion is deferred to in matters that, in the National League, would cause secession if Lynch attempted to intervene. Scarcely a move is made in the American League that has not his anction. He had many a bitter fight before he finally convinced everybody, even the hard-headed Old Roman, Charley Comiskey, that he was a man to be deferred to.

If Wallace does win the approval of Johnson, he will come pretty close to being the proper goods as a manager for the Browns.

* * *

Found Jobs for McAleer.

JOHNSON was responsible for the advent of McAleer to St. Louis and to Washington, when, later on, intolerant criticism here forced the club to get rid of James. At a banquet at Chicago Johnson referred to McAleer as one of the brainiest managers known to the game.

No sooner did it become apparent that St. Louis would let McAleer out than Johnson made a place for him at Washington.

In deferring to Johnson for a managerial suggestion, therefore, no precedent is being set.

* * *

Roger Will Help.

UMPIRE RIGLER is going to apply that $500 he received from the worlds' series activity to finishing a course of law at the University of Virginia. Roger Bresnahan, Clarke Griffith and John McGraw will add a little to the $500 if it will suffice to keep Rigler in school 12 months instead of six. They might suggest adding to his curriculum a course in baseball rules.

* * *

Mr. Needham's Graft.

IF you hear of the most remarkable incident known to baseball—that of a player paying for the privilege of becoming a member of a big league baseball club—you will know that the man involved is Needham, catcher.

Daniel wasn't used extensively last season, but he made good in other fields. Needham won $1898 playing poker with his teammates, which is about twice as much as the Cubs each drew down from the world's series.

A man with a soft thing like that ought to pay to hold his berth.

* * *

"John L. Sullivan," says his manager, "is too square a sport to knock any man." But his proxy—to wit, said manager—makes up for John L.

John's manager is Frank Hall. He comes out with a statement that if Jeffries will put up his share of the Reno purse as a reward to anyone who will prove that Johnson had agreed to lay down to him, he himself will lead the procession to the "dough."

Mr. Hall is making himself a sort of party to that affair, if he knows anything and withholds it.

The Valley Conference season has been singularly free from injuries. None of a serious nature has been reported. As far as this phase of the new rules is concerned, they have proven a great success to date.

That Tiger-Washington Race.

UP to Saturday's games, Missouri and Washington had been leading each other a warm chase for inter-university football honors. Out of the 12 games played here from 1890 on, Washington had won five, lost six and tied one, giving the Tigers a single victory advantage. In total points scored, Missouri had a big edge, totaling 180 to Washington's 98. The worst defeat suffered by either team was in 1907, when Washington was beaten, 40 to 0. Probably the most interesting of the games between these two schools was in 1900, when Missouri won, 6 to 5. The defeat of Washington on that occasion was by four inches, the Washington fullback missing the try for goal from touchdown by that margin.

M'KINLEY FOOTBALL STARS ON RIVAL TEAMS IN GAME TODAY

Douglass Johnson and Otto Springe, two St. Louis boys who graduated in the January class '07 of the McKinley High School, and back-field men on the same school eleven several years ago, will today clash on the gridiron when the Northwestern and Illinois universities clash in their annual battle. Johnson, who played beside Springe on the South Side school, in the back field, will line up at quarterback with Northwestern, while Springe will play left tackle for Illinois. Both of these McKinley High boys were stars in athletics in the local intercholastic circle, and have attained considerable success among the intercollegiates.

Johnson holds the State intersholastic record for the 440-yard run, which is 51 2-5s. Springe was a shotputter, and today is the best at Illinois at heaving the sphere.

Fighting Freak and His Latest Victim.

MISSOURI LOOKS FOR LOW SCORE IN TODAY'S GAME

Weakest Team Tigers Have Had in Field Will Face Washington.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 12.—Missouri expects to beat Washington U. today, but no top heavy score is anticipated. The Tiger goal has not been crossed this season; but Missouri rooters are fearful lest Washington, with her usual luck in recovering fumbles, will spoil this record. So long as Cayou's team is held scoreless, Missouri will be content with a mere victory.

The Myrtle and Maroon eleven will doubtless suffer as a result of the Tiger defeat by St. Louis last Saturday, as Hollenbach's squad is now primed with fighting intentions against Washington and Kansas. Without attempting to put out a tear story, however, it may be truthfully said that Missouri will face Cayou's eleven tomorrow with the weakest lineup of the season. Nine of the regulars are more or less injured and six of them—Hall, Lemire, Perkheiser, Shuck, Thompson and Nowell, have not been in suits since Wednesday's scrimmage, and with the possible exception of Thompson, will not be in the game today. Capt. Thatcher, Graves and Knobel are all bandaged up but able to play. Lemire and Perkheiser are probably out of the game for the rest of the year.

Shifts in Tiger Team.

Hollenbach is still trying to improve the line and now has Barnes and Hastings, two heavyweights, in the places of Perkheiser and Graves at guard and tackle respectively. A. W. Roberts has been shifted from guard to center position and may stick there if he works well against Washington. No scrimmage was held today on account of injuries, but the rooters were well entertained by a class game between the senior and freshmen elevens, which the latter won, 16 to 0. Missouri's probable lineup today is: Idler, left end; Hastings or Graves, left tackle; Barles, left guard; Roberts, center; Captain Thatcher, right guard; Johnson, right tackle; Burress, right end; Saunders or Klein, quarterback; Hackney, left half; Knoebel, fullback; Curtis or Mills, right half.

Diamond Flashes

Capt. Davis and Secretary John Shibe of the Athletics are in Savannah, Ga., to look over the facilities for spring training.

Frank Mount Pleasant, the former Carlisle quarterback star, has signed to play with the Lancaster (Tristate League) next season.

President Johnson of the American League says the Athletics have given up the proposed Cuban tour. He claims not enough members of the team would sign up for the trip.

President Navin caused the proposed automobile race between Ty Cobb and Nap Rucker being called off. He pointed out that danger of a possible smashup.

Tim Murnane and Jake Morse of Boston, president and secretary respectively of the New England League, will finish their 16th year terms as officers of that body this winter. They are slated for re-election.

Not a single member of the Athletics drew a suspension from President Johnson during the 1910 season.

Joe Flanner has resigned as secretary to President Johnson of the American League to re-enter the newspaper field. He returns to St. Louis as editor of the Sporting News, the position he left to join the American League [illegible] a year ago.

"Southpaw" Fighter Is on Trail of Wolgast

Peculiar Fighting Pose and Terrific Punch Are Forcing "Knockout" Brown to the Front in the East.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A queer genius in the prize ring world is "Knockout" Brown, a tow-headed "southpaw" from the East Side, who has been insistently making himself a force in the local fight world.

Thursday he enhanced his reputation from local to national by putting it all over Tommy Murphy, one of the very best lightweights in the world, and who has whipped the present ring champion Ad Wolgast.

The beating Murphy took was about the worst showing in his career. So decisive was Brown's victory that he is now conceded the right to challenge for the title.

The peculiarity about Brown, and one that puzzles his opponents, is that he reverses the customary ring pose by putting both his right arm and his right foot forward when sparring. Every man who has met Brown has been disconcerted by his fighting pose.

This, together with about the toughest head and the hardest punch since the days of the Durable Dane, makes him a formidable fighting machine.

Fight followers here believe there is a great future for this scrapper.

Short Punts

Hackney is in bad odor at Columbia for his failure to kick in the St. Louis game last Saturday.

Webb, the captain and center of the Kentucky state team, which meets St. Louis U. today, looks as if he ought to help along the average of that lightweight organization.

It is the hope of local football enthusiasts that the Kentucky game today will be as free from penalties as were the two played in this city last Saturday.

Immediately after Yale's defeat by Brown last Saturday, the New Haven team seemed to be invigorated with new life, and its stock has been rapidly advancing in value. The odds have gone from 5 to 2 on Princeton to 5 to 4 on the same favorite.

Howe is slated to be Yale's captain in 1911.

Yale was beaten by Princeton, 11 to 6, in 1903. Since then Yale has beaten the Tigers in every game except that of 1906, in which there was no scoring.

Ten Indian tribes are represented on the Carlisle football team this fall.

Secretary R. H. Hall of the football rules committee declined to umpire the Army-Navy game, as he felt he had not had enough experience under the new rules to take on a big game.

Over three hundred students left Dartmouth Friday to attend the Dartmouth-Harvard game at the Harvard Stadium Saturday afternoon. The Dartmouth Club of Boston had an "open night" at the Hotel Bellevue Friday night, and may open it up a little wider if Dartmouth wins today.

Nine points have been scored on Michigan this season—three field goals. Its goal line still remains touchdown-proof.

The St. Louis University junior football eleven defeated the Seldan High School team 5 to 0 at St. Louis University campus Friday afternoon. Theis scored the lone touchdown for the blue and white team.

The Kansas Aggies are trying to break into the Missouri Valley conference. It's a good thing for the reputations of the other elevens that the Aggies are not already entered. They beat the strong Arkansas eleven 5 to 0.

Nebraska may want to get John Bender as coach, but they'll have to talk in pretty round terms to beat the St. Louis U. kid after the showing the sturdy little worker has made with the local men.

Henry Lindsay's eleven may win the Missouri College football title by defeating the Central College eleven Monday.

No games will be played Saturday. St. Yeatman stalled off its game with Central, while Western M. A. was unable to schedule a contest.

CORNELL ELEVEN 10 TO 8 FAVORITE

Chicago's Weak Showing This Year Encourages Followers of Ithaca Team.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Cornell's biggest home game of the year will be played this afternoon when the Ithaca eleven will hook up with the University of Chicago for the third game of the series. More confidence was expressed in Ithaca last night and this morning as to the outcome than was manifested before either of the two tie games that have already been played between the two universities. There was little betting done, but Cornell was a 10 to 8 favorite.

The team has braced up wonderfully during the last week. Yesterday's short practice was held at Percy field. It is customary on Fridays to use Percy field instead of alumni field to get the men accustomed to it for the Saturday games. Only signal drill was engaged in and the plays went off well. The men are in very good condition and should put up the best game they have shown so far.

All the injured are coming around all right. Baker has recovered and Robb is about the only one of the varsity squad who is not in good trim.

The lineup will be about the same as that which faced Harvard. Ehrich and Seagraves will start at end with Pitcher, a sub, for Ehrich, in case a drop kick is needed. Munk and Delano, tackles; Champaign and Hale, guards, and Stimson and Miller at center, will make up the line. Butler will start at quarter, although it is probable that both Smith and Gass will get into the game. Bates O'Conner and Stimson will start in the back field.

LOBERT PREFERS PRISON TO PLAYING WITH CARDINALS

Hans Lobert, the Reds' third baseman, takes credit for blocking the deal whereby he was to have become a member of the Cardinals three years ago. "Mr. Herrmann traded me to St. Louis," said Lobert, "but I would rather spend a couple of years in prison than play in that town, so I wrote Stanley Robison that I positively would not join the Cardinals.

"My threat to quit had its effect. Robison got cold feet and backed out. I realize now that I would have been foolish to have quit the game for so slight a cause."

SPEED BOYS MAY WORRY BENDER'S CONFIDENT TEAM

Kentucky University's Eleven Has Made Great Record Against Rivals This Year.

GOAL LINE INVIOLATE

Not a Touchdown Has Been Scored Against Sweetland's Lightweight Aggregation.

The original speed boys of college football will spice the season here with an exhibition against the St. Louis University football team here, starting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, at Sportsman's Park.

Kentucky broke into the limelight, as far as the Middle West is concerned, by catching the Illinois University eleven of 1909 off its guard and slipping over a victory. This year the team is said to be quite as good as that of last season, and its record of some 123 points against the opposition's six field goals—indicates it has an eleven of merit. Its best games this year were defeats of Ohio University and Tulane University by two touchdowns in each case.

The Kentucky team is probably the lightest aggregation of football players of real class that has been here in years. Their entire team, says Capt. Webb, only averages 148 pounds and their back field only 139.

Speed Is Colonels' Reliance.

They showed in their practice Friday afternoon that it was largely due to their speed and sureness that they have made such a fine record this season. According to the figures given out by Capt. Webb, Bender's men will have the edge on them at least in the question of weight. If the local men can maintain the speed that they displayed in last Saturday's game against Missouri there ought to be another victory for the blue and white team.

The St. Louis U. team went through its practice, Friday afternoon, without a hitch, and Bender is only bothering about too much confidence on the part of his men. Dockery will start the game at quarter and do the kicking for the team until Maguire goes in at fullback, later in the game, to relieve Dockery.

Either McCarthy or Zachrits will start in at left half, and either one is thoroughly capable of filling the position.

The lineup for the game will be as follows:

Kentucky.	Positions.	St. Louis U.
Gilliner	Right end	Erhardt
Johnson	Right tackle	Moran
Earl	Right guard	Schloemmer
Webb (Capt.)	Center	Higley
Campbell	Left guard	Wagner
Babb	Left end	Haley
Gaiser	Quarter	Dockery
Shanklin	Right halfback	Painter
Watkins	Left halfback	McCarthy or Zachrits
Threlkeld	Fullback	Ed Stadtherr

The time of the periods will be 15 minutes each, and the officials will be: Referee, W. C. Connett (Virginia); umpire, Fred Lowenthal (Illinois); head linesman, W. G. Burroughs (Illinois).

MICHIGAN CONFIDENT OF BEATING PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—One of the best teams in the East meets one of the best teams in the West on the football field here this afternoon when the elevens of the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Michigan clash on Franklin Field. Fine weather is promised.

Michigan came East with eight veterans of last year's team, which defeated the Philadelphia team 12 to 6. Pennsylvania's lineup shows many new names compared with last year, but the new men have learned the new football well and have been playing a snappy game. Michigan has the heavier team and this, with the experience of many hard battles, has put confidence in the Western contingent.

FIRST SMOKER AT BROADWAY CLUB

Heavyweight Amateurs Will Furnish Feature of Boxing and Wrestling Program.

The first boxing tournament of the season tonight at the South Broadway Athletic Club should be productive of some excellent sport in all of the five bouts arranged and in the wrestling match between Max Reinhold and Hermann Rupert, champion of the C. Y. M. C. A.

The feature bout will be a match at 160 pounds between Henry Krause of the M. A. C. and Tony Lobig of the South Broadway A. C. Krause, who had deserted the game for over a year, has come back strong, getting into first-class condition for the bout with Lobig. He will be the only M. A. C. man on the card, as Brinkmann could not get down to Dalwitz's weight, cutting the M. A. C. terror off the list. Will Scott will go on instead of Dalwitz, against Brinkman.

In the 110-pound class Eddie Meyers of the B. M. G. will tackle a tough opponent in Jim Murphy of the S. B. A. C. The other bouts should also prove to be of considerable interest. They are as follows:

110-pound class—Kid Applebaum, S. B. A. C., vs. Will Stengel, unattached.
115-pound class—Jim Murphy, S. B. A. C., vs. Eddie Meyers, B M. G.
125-pound class—George La Chance, S. B. A. C., vs. Harry Nahn, S. B. A. C.
123-pound class—Will Scott, S. B. A. C., vs. Fred Brinkman, unattached.
160-pound class—Tony Lobig, S. B. A. C., vs. Henry Krause, M. A. C.
Wrestling match between Max Reinhold and Herman Ruppert.

Strikes and Spares

All of today's receipts at the De Soto-Olive alleys will go to help pay the expenses of handling the A. B. C. national tournament, to be held at the Coliseum, starting Jan. 21.

Sunday, Nov. 13, will be A. B. C. day at the De Soto Pins alleys.

Entries for the Middle West tournament which will be held in Omaha, Nov. 26, close with Richard Grotte next Wednesday, Nov. 16. Secretary Sweeney of the local association says that he expects at least twenty clubs from St. Louis to attend that big event.

In all probability $26,000 will be divided up in prizes at the A. B. C. National tournament. That is something of a "pot" for the bowlers of this country to go after.

Next Thursday evening Martin Kern will open up eight alleys in the Langan-Taylor building, Delmar and Euclid. He can't keep out of the game. One innovation at his Delmar-Euclid alleys will be a class of ladies who will come under the instruction of Mrs. Birdie Horsfall, who was formerly Miss Birdie Kern. Martin has to go at his best to beat Mrs. Horsfall at the tenpin game.

Duffy's team, which has already entered the Middle West tournament, has three strong players in J. J. Duffy, Martin Kern and "Pop" Jellison. Duffy is manager of the team. All of the men on the team possess silver medals presented to them by the A. B. C. for the second best single game for a five-man team. The game which brought these was rolled on the Grand alleys with a total of 1143 pins.

Martin Kern, one of the members of the Duffys, has won the Middle West and the world's championships. A. C. Jellison of the same team has won the A. B. C.'s gold medal and this year won the bronze medal by bowling 239 on the De Soto-Pine alleys.

In 1907, when the A. B. C. tournament was held in this city, St. Louis had 68 five-men teams entered. Last year when the event was held in Detroit the local men had 16 teams, while Detriot had 62 teams.

Sixteen alleys will be placed in the Coliseum for the big national tournament. They will run north and south, that is from Washington avenue toward Locust street.

A few of the local leagues that will be represented in the A. B. C. national events in the Coliseum are the Woodmen of the World, Anheuser-Busch, Royal Arcanum, Commercial, Bakeries, Commission Merchants, Manufacturers and Druggists.

In the Commercial League the best four individual single games so far this season are Neibert, 246, of the Otto Stifel's; Welch, 244, of the Buxton & Skinner's; Hippe, 234, of the Fermillacs, and Jarrett, 234, of the Otto Stifel's.

Carey Outpoints Ferguson.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Tommy Carey of Nicetown outpointed Joe Ferguson of Port Richmond in a six-round bout at the Central Athletic Club last night. In the first round Carey floored Ferguson for the count of 9, and thereafter had things pretty much his own way, winning by a good margin.

DARTMOUTH MEN EXPECT VICTORY OVER HARVARD

Has Happened Before and May Happen Again in Battle Today, but—

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—It was some nine years ago when Harvard found herself in possession of a handsome cement structure patterned on the plan of an old Grecian stadium. Great preparation was made to christen this magnificent piece of architecture. A nomadic football assortment wearing the green of Dartmouth had always been vanquished with ease by Harvard, and more in jest than otherwise it was determined that the Hanoverians should be allowed to participate in a small way in the inaugural ceremonies.

The Dartmouth warriors came down like a wolf on the fold, and when the slaughter was over Harvard found herself "licked to a frazzle," while the visitors went "hum, by gum," with 11 points to tell the natives how it all happened.

The two succeeding seasons the elevens fought to a tie. In 1908 Harvard won, 22 to 0. In the following year Dartmouth's men were the conquerors, 22 to 0. Last year and the year before Harvard triumphed, but only by the slenderest of margins.

Wind-Up for Dartmouth.

The game today is the closing one on the Dartmouth schedule and the last home game for the Harvard team. Both elevens are keen for victory, and as far as physical strength and courage goes seem evenly matched.

Coach Haughton's last admonishment to his men has been made: "A steady game, fellows. Work and work hard all the time. This is Harvard's day."

Coach Randall cautions his men: "Play your best, and that is all I ask. We can beat this eleven today, but must play our prettiest."

HERMANN MAKES NEW DEAL FOR PHILADELPHIA PLAYERS

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 12.—August Hermann, president of the Cincinnati National League Club, says he probably will have important announcements to make some time today, but will not say in advance what is to be made public.

That it is a deal with the Philadelphia National League team taking more players to Philadelphia from Cincinnati and bringing more to Cincinnati from there is the report in baseball circles.

CATARRH

A SPECIFIC BLOOD IMPURITY

Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease, one which no amount of local treatment will ever permanently cure. The beneficial effects of washes, sprays, inhalations, etc., are only temporary, and when the old condition returns, because the blood is infected with catarrhal matter and impurities. This impure condition of the circulation irritates and inflames the delicate mucous membranes and tissues and produces the well known symptoms of ringing noises in the head and ears, mucus in the throat, headaches, watery eyes, partial deafness, sore throat, general impairment of health, etc. This condition will remain, growing worse as long as the catarrhal matter is allowed to remain in the blood. Being a specific blood impurity, there is only one way to cure Catarrh, and that is to purify the blood. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. It attacks the disease at its head—in the circulation—and by thoroughly renovating the blood and cleansing it of all impure matter, makes a permanent and lasting cure of the disease. For forty years S. S. S. has been recognised as the best blood purifier, and the thousands of cases of Catarrh it has cured is proof that it is the very medicine needed. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all.

EASTERN STOCK MARKET SHOWS UNCERTAIN TONE

General List Records Small Changes; London Prices Are Steady.

BANK RETURNS GOOD

Reserves Increase and Excess of Loans Over Deposits Contract.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

The stock market was a dull and uncertain affair throughout. Prices opened fractionally below yesterday, then there was an irregular recovery and on a small volume of business the market became relatively firm. It was a highly professional movement with utter absence of such activity as characterized the market of last Saturday, when traders were excited by the possibilities of the election. In the last hour trading became very dull and the market seemed at times to be almost motionless.

Money Rates Unchanged.

There was no further change in discount rates abroad. At London the markets were somewhat depressed by the continuance of the bank rate, trading there being almost as lifeless as it was here. The New York closing was fairly firm, with very little business and unimportant net changes for day. Even the usually active issues such as United States Steel, Reading, Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper were comparatively neglected at the close. American shares abroad hardened a trifle before the close on covering operations and some support from this side.

The weekly bank statement was highly favorable. Because of the heavy liquidation in the stock market, and the general shifting of loans to London, the banks were able to reduce their actual loans $15,175,000 during the week. This was the chief factor in adding $6,831,775 to the actual surplus item. The gain in cash was more than double that indicated by yesterday's forecasts. The present surplus is, therefore well above that shown in this week of any year since 1904, with the exception of 1908. The most important change, however, was the reduction in the excess of loans over the deposits to $36,058,000. last week it stood over $39,000,000.

DETAILED REPORTS OF DAY'S TRADING ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Opening prices of stocks today vibrated but slightly from last night's closing level and the dealings were small. Changes were mixed with most of the more active stocks, showing declines. Sears-Roebuck advanced 2½ and Evansville & Terre Haute 2.

LYMAN T. HAY WANTS A LAW TO PUNISH HOTEL DEAD BEATS

St. Louisan Is Elected President of Missouri and Kansas Association.

Col. Lyman T. Hay, proprietor of the Planters and Jefferson hotels in St. Louis and the Arlington and Eastman at Hot Springs, Ark., was unanimously elected president of the Missouri and Kansas Hotel Men's Association Saturday. The convention of the hotel men is being held at the Planters.

Col. Hay hopes to get legislation enacted for the protection of the hotel men against dead beats.

It is estimated that the hotel men of St. Louis lose about $25,000 a year on bad checks and bad accounts. The hotel men say that they are in a position where they are forced to give credit to all of their guests, and as the result of such circumstances they are often imposed upon. Col. Hay was unanimously elected, and was given an ovation by the hotel men when he took the chair. Alonzo B. Clark of the Savoy Hotel, Kansas City, was elected first vice-president; Barney Elisky of Kansas City, temporary secretary and treasurer. James H. McTague of the Maryland Hotel, St. Louis, was elected a member of the Executive Board.

DR. WILEY FIRES BROADSIDE AT SHOTGUN PHARMACY AND DOSES

Chief Chemist of Federal Bureau Protests Against Ruining People's Constitutions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—"Shotgun" pharmacy and "shotgun" therapeutics were targets for Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, in an address last night before the association of official agricultural chemists.

"It is, perhaps, very natural for a physician who is uncertain about a case to fire a broadside in the hope that some of the preparations may become effective," he said. "But in the experiment the constitutions of hundreds of persons may be ruined."

Dr. Wiley urged that no drugs intended for consumption in the state in which they are produced or sold should be permitted in interstate or foreign commerce if they vary from the standards set by the Pharmacopoeia, now being revised by an association which will fix the standards.

COTTON MARKET LACKS SUPPORT AND PRICES ARE SLIGHTLY OFF

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1@5 points under scattering liquidation and a little local selling inspired by reactionary theories, rather disappointing cables and private reports from Liverpool that the South was offering spots more freely. There was no important pressure, however, and the market during the middle of the morning ruled steady, with prices holding close to the final figures of yesterday. Trading was quiet and seemed to be largely in the way of evening up for over the week end.

The market closed quiet but steady, with prices net 1 point higher to 4 points lower.

Estimated receipts at the ports today, 40,000 bales, against 51,661 last week and 89,175 last year. For the week, 350,000 bales, against 378,608 last week and 277,066 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans, 5151 bales, against 4688 last year, and at Houston, 11,472, against 10,393 last year.

Liverpool, Nov. 12.—Closing: Cotton, spot quiet; prices, 4 points lower; American middling, 8.41d; good middling, 8.09d; middling, 7.97d; low middling, 7.77d; good ordinary, 7.51d; ordinary, 7.26d. The sales of the day were 6000 bales, of which 300 were for speculation and export, and included 5300 American. Receipts, 34,000 bales, including 28,100 American.

Futures opened easier and closed quiet: Nov., 7.70½d; Nov.-Dec., 7.72d; Dec.-Jan., 7.71d; Jan.-Feb., 7.71½d; Feb.-March 7.72½d; March-April, 7.73½d; April-May 7.73½d; May-June, 7.74d; June-July, 7.73d; July-Aug., 7.70½d.

32,000 HARVARD MEN LIVING

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—There are about 32,000 men now living who claim Harvard as their alma mater, according to the Harvard University directory, which will soon be ready for distribution.

The book has been compiled by J. D. Greene, '96, the work taking much of the last six years. At the time the investigation was commenced the number of living Harvard men was estimated at 20,000.

NATIVE CATTLE—Receipts were 300 head. Part of these consisted of stock cattle billed through to the distillery districts east of this market. The market was nominal. For the week steers close 25 to 40c lower and are at the low ebb of the year. Heifers ruled strong to a dime higher and were in good demand. Cows close steady for the week, while veal calves advanced a quarter. The stock cattle trade has been irregular, with a steady average. Milkers are now selling at the highest point of the season.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—The receipts footed up 1500 head, but they were principally Mexican cattle billed direct to Morris. Salable offerings were light, amounting to only a few loads; a lot of mixed Mississippis and two loads of medium Texas calves that brought $5.75. For the week the market in the quarantine division is closing steady on steers. Best cows close 10c to 15c lower and canners 25c lower. Veal calves have advanced a quarter of a dollar and yearlings are up 10c to 15c.

HOGS—The market opened on a steady basis, but later in the day was full 5c lower, on which basis it closed. The top of the market was $8.20 for several loads, which is the same as the top on Friday. Bulk of the hogs sold from $8.00@8.12½. The market was fairly active, and the hogs were well cleaned up by noon, but a few loads that dropped in later were held over as all of the buyers quit around noon or shortly after. Packers were right good buyers, but most of the good hogs went to the city butchers. Best packers brought $8.10@8.15 and fair to medium grades $7.90@8.05. Pigs and lights were slow sale, as shippers were not buying many hogs. Heavy hogs are now selling well up towards the top of the market.

SHEEP—What sheep arrived today were all brought in by the local slaughterers. The market closed weak with best lambs about steady with the close of last week and bringing $6.25@6.75, but fair grade and common lambs are lower and so are sheep. Sheep are fully 25c lower and right good muttons sold yesterday at $3.50@3.75, with the very best at $3.85@4. Bucks are still on a $3 basis.

HORSES AND MULES—The horse market was quiet and inactive all day. There are no horses left in first hands and the dealers are all well cleaned up of their week's offerings. Fresh receipts for the day were light, approximating 25 head. The mule market was slow and draggy. Buyers were scarce and few sales of any consequence were reported. Prices remain steady to strong on the best kind of nice, fat cotton, mine and sugar mules. Fresh mule receipts for the day approximated 25 head.

Market firm.

A $10,000,000 MELON.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A $10,000,000 "melon" was decided on today by the directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the stock of which is listed on the New York and Chicago exchanges. The directors voted to recommend a stock dividend of 33 1-3 per cent on the common stock ($30,000,000), to holders of record April 1, 1911. Ratification of this dividend by the stockholders at their annual meeting, Feb. 27, 1911, is regarded as a mere formality, the majority of the stock having been represented at the directors' meeting today.

WHEAT MARKET DRIFTS LOWER; TRADE QUIET

Days News Is Negative; Foreign Markets Are Irregular.

Traders were inclined to sell wheat today, despite a mild continuation of manipulation in the December option in Chicago. Prices drifted off fractionally on light offerings. The speculation was entirely professional.

The export inquiry was nothing to enthuse over, and sales reported in outside markets the past few days lack official confirmation. Minneapolis reported a good cash demand from millers, but the Southwestern markets lacked the snap of recent days.

Corn showed the traders at sea as regards the question of the farmer holding his grain, although the indications are that much grain will be held back owing to the unusually low price. Western bankers report a large rediscounting of farmers' paper the past week, which would indicate that considerable corn will not come on the market.

On the other hand, country advices in many sections say the market will be flooded with corn in the near future.

Des Moines, Io. wires said: "New corn will start in earnest after the 15. Iowa will have 400,000,000 bu. Crop is yielding 40 to 80 bu to the acre and most places, 45. Acerage over 10,000,000." "And there you are."

Oats were quiet but steady in the face of light receipts and a moderately bullish speculative demand.

Liverpool wheat prices were ¼d up in the early market on American advices, an improved demand for Manitoba parcels and sale of a cargo of Walahala wheat to France. Later, the advance was lost on unfavorable price advices from Winnipeg, favorable Argentine weather reports were expectations of large Black Sea shipments again this week. Corn in the foreign market was quiet with spot demands on Plate grades ¼d up, and American grades 1d up on light American offers.

Liverpool wheat futures closed unchanged. Spot corn ¼@1d up, futures, unchanged. Paris wheat ¼@½c up, flour ¼c lower to ⅜c higher. Antwerp wheat unchanged and Budapest ⅛c higher.

Broomhall cabled: "Our Roumanian agent at Braila says that both weather and crop outlook continue favorable. Arrivals at ports are small, but expected to increase shortly. Stocks are decreasing. The market on wheat and corn is easy."

Minneapolis wheat cars today 264; last week, 254; last year, 359; two years ago, 247. Duluth, 122; last week, 106; last year, 248; two years ago, 305. Winnipeg cars 427, against 417 last year.

Chicago wheat receipts today 33,600 bu, against 53,800 bu last year; shipments 29,000 bu, against 62,548 bu last year.

Kansas City wheat receipts today 129,600 bu, against 111,300 bu last year; shipments 134,000, against 92,400 bu last year.

Local wheat receipts today 67,800 bu or 50 cars local, 8 through; last year 78,089 bu, or 1737 sacks, 73 cars local, 2 through.

Local corn receipts today 21,660 bu, or 14 cars local, 4 through; last year 55,000 bu, or 44 cars local, 6 through.

Local oats receipts today 52,700 bu, or 24 cars local, 7 through; last year 60,800 bu, or 38 cars local.

Total primary wheat receipts today 972,962 bu, against 995,533 bu last year; shipments 425,438 bu, against 474,436 bu last year. Minneapolis wheat stocks increase 50,000 bu in one day.

Minneapolis wires: "A fair aggregate volume of flour sales made yesterday. Smaller mills booked scattered orders with report of many inquiries in the market, but bids are out of line. Considerable shading of quotations is being made, which is getting the business, but demoralizing the trade."

"Corn receipts at Chicago this week are 1,415,000 bu, although decreasing 469,000 from the previous week, are 81,000 bu more than last year and are the largest at this time of year in four years. In the face of claims of large cash sales, shipments are 1,197,000 bu, or 218,000 bu less than receipts.

Cash wheat unchanged to ½c lower all around; demand slow, in sympathy with break in futures.

Cash corn ½c lower on old, with demand slow. New corn neglected and bulk of receipts carried over unsold.

Cash oats scarce and higher for white grades; demand good locally and from shippers.

FINANCIAL. FINANCIAL.

THE McKINLEY SYSTEM UNDERLYING BONDS

The opening of the new McKinley Bridge emphasizes the possibility of the increased earnings of the St. Louis, Springfield and Peoria Railway Company.

The St. Louis, Springfield & Peoria Railway Company is that part of the McKinley System lying between Venice, Ill., and Springfield, Ill.

For three years the St. Louis, Springfield & Peoria Railway Company has shown large and increased earnings.

The entrance into St. Louis by the opening of the greatest electric railway bridge, should increase to a large degree the company's prosperity.

The bonds, secured by the most valuable part of the system, that is, the section entering St. Louis, are strong.

A mortgage upon a link of one of the great electric railway systems of the country (serving a prosperous and diversified territory, building and developing industries of the territory in which its activities are centered) offers to the people of this community an investment in which their funds will be secure and an investment in which they may be proud to hold.

We have repurchased a few of the $1,800,000 ST. LOUIS, SPRINGFIELD & PEORIA RAILWAY FIRST AND REF. 5's, 1939, originally sold by us.

We give you the opportunity to purchase small lots of bonds unsold at a price to yield more than 5 per cent.

200 POUNDS OF GELATIN TO BE EXPLODED ON WARSHIP

Monitor Puritan Will Be Used in Settling Discussion Among Experts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The high explosive test to which the armor of the monitor Puritan will be subjected in Hampton Roads on Nov. 15 will determine the value of the explosive gelatin in an unconfined charge on the heavy turret armor of a war vessel.

The test will be made on the after turret of the Puritan, the charge being ignited by an electrical arrangement from the forward part of the vessel. About 200 pounds will be exploded.

Ordnance officers hold that the force of such an unconfined explosion will take the line of least resistance, and, consequently, spread its volume upward and outward; while inventors claim it will seriously disable the vessel.

$50,000 ASKED OF ROCKEFELLER BY BLACK HAND

Hungarian Member Arrested When He Calls for Letters to Be Translated.

WERE NOT MAILED

Oil King Did Not Redeive Threatening Missives Intended for Him.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The detective bureau of the Bronx has captured a fullfledged member of the Black Hand, but of the Hungarian brand. The prisoner says he is Peter Lillion, a laborer, and that he had come from Cleveland recently. He walked into the steamship office of Mandell & Ilkovits and placed three letters on the desk of the manager, Hugo Kardos.

"You translate these letters," he said to the manager, "and have them ready by 3 o'clock."

Then he walked out. A letter addressed to the manager read:

Inclosed find two letters which I would like translated into English. If you do not do this for me I am going to kill you. If you are going to have me arrested it makes no difference, as my association is very strong and they will get you. F. K.

The manager began to speculate what F. K. stood for. He finally decided it meant Fekede Kez, Hungarian for Black Hand. While waiting for the police he read the other letters. The first was:

Mr. Rockefeller—We send you this letter to let you know that we want $50,000. This is for our society. If you do not give us this money we will kill you. If unable to find you we will seek one of your family and get him. F. K.

Calls and Is Arrested.

The third letter evidently was intended for use after the other had been mailed. It was:

Mr. Rockefeller: You no doubt received our first letter. Are you ready to give us the $50,000? We will send you another letter telling you the time and day the man will come to your house. Don't forget. F. K.

Detectives were in the office. Lillion appeared on time, was arrested and taken to the Detective Bureau. He said he had just come from Cleveland. While standing in front of a bank there, he said an automobile stopped, its occupants got out and entered the bank. He found in the car a bundle containing $200,000 worth of bonds and took the securities. He said that while walking in Kingsbridge a few weeks ago he lost the bonds.

About three weeks ago a package containing bonds apparently worth $75,000 was picked up in Kingsbridge, but the bonds proved to be samples and worthless.

Lillion was taken to police headquarters, where he was received as the chief of the Fekede Kez.

SOCIETY LADIES CLAIM EPIDEMIC OF SORE FEET

Effective Remedy Given.

The prevailing style of shoes that tend to throw the weight of the body forward on to the pinched and crowded toes has caused a general affliction among our well-dressed society ladies of acute foot ailments, corns, callouses, bunions, ingrown nails and muscular swellings. To the victims of these troubles is given here, a remedy that is probably the most effective known to science. Bathe the feet from ten to fifteen minutes in a basin of hot water in which two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound has been dissolved. The results are really remarkable. This instantly draws out all soreness and leaves the feet most delightfully cool and comfortable. It shrinks corns and callouses so they can easily be peeled off. It may be necessary to repeat this treatment several nights for a complete cure. Calocide compound is a strictly scientific preparation well known to doctors. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Twenty-five cents buys sufficient quantity to put the worst feet in fine condition. This will prove especially welcome to those who have been using ineffective powders and tablets.—ADV.

QUIPS BY ROOSEVELT'S ENEMIES ON THE REPUBLICANS' DEFEAT

THE general belief that Colonel Roosevelt was largely responsible for the Republican defeat last Tuesday has brought out many little flings at the former President. None has yet succeeded in "getting a rise out of Sagamore hill. Some of the stories follow:

DEMOCRATIC State Chairman Hugh Nichols took a slap at Theodore Roosevelt in a telegram sent from Cleveland, O., to the Colonel reading:

"Counties in which you defamed Gov. Harmon show net gains for him of more than 25,000. Call again."

A TELEPHONE bell rang in the New York office of the Associated Press Tuesday night. A woman's voice said:

"This is the Outlook office. Will you please tell us how the election is going?"

"Foss has carried Massachusetts," was the reply. "Connecticut and New Jersey also have gone Democratic. Harmon has been elected in Ohio and Dix has carried New York by about 60,000 plurality."

There was a moment's pause, and then, from the feminine voice.

"My God! What will the Colonel say?"

In connection with the above the New York World has offered as a prize a fine Thanksgiving turkey for the best answer to the important question, WHAT DID THE COLONEL SAY?

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT, care of the Outlook, New York. The people do not like the breed. Fred Paul Grosscup."

This is a copy of the telegram Fred Grosscup of Charleston, leading Republican politician in West Virginia, sent the Colonel on Tuesday night after the election results became known. The telegram is an answer to an insult which Roosevelt as President offered to Grosscup when the latter was in the race for Collector of Internal Revenue for West Virginia.

Grosscup is a brother of Judge Peter Grosscup, who on the Federal bench won Roosevelt's ill will. He was the choice of both Senators Elkins and Scott and of the five West Virginia Congressmen for the office. They all joined in asking Roosevelt to appoint him.

SENATOR ELKINS and Senator Scott brought the news back to West Virginia, however, that Roosevelt, when Grosscup's name was mentioned, flew into a rage and declared he would never appoint him if he was a brother of Judge Peter Grosscup.

"I don't like the breed," was his final word.

George Work of Sisterville was appointed collector. Grosscup long bore his wrath over the insult in silence. Tuesday night's news inspired him to send the telegram.

CONGRESSMAN-ELECT MARTIN W. LITTLETON, who was elected over Col. Roosevelt's friend, W. W. Cocks, in Roosevelt's own district, was being congratulated by a host of Democratic friends at the Manhattan Club yesterday.

"Well, how are things down at Oyster Bay now?" one man asked.

"Oyster Bay?" said Littleton. "They don't call it Oyster Bay any more."

"Well, what do they call it?"

"Blue Point," he replied.

BULL FIGHT IN MEXICO CALLED OFF FOR SUNDAY

Report Was That Citizens Would Go Armed and Attack American Embassy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
BY N. A. JENNINGS.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 12.—Everything is quiet in Mexico City today, but many unfounded and alarming reports are being circulated. One was that at the bull fight next Sunday thousands would go armed and would attack the American embassy afterwards. This chance was averted by calling off the bull fight.

The police and soldiers are on the alert and are fully able to cope with any trouble that may arise. Many rurales, the best fighters in the Mexican army, are kept in the barracks, ready at a moment's notice to take a hand. There have been no insults to Americans in the streets for 36 hours.

Americans laugh at the alarmist reports and feel perfectly safe. The only possible real danger may be in other cities, but that is not likely to be anything more than breaking of windows and yelling "Death to Gringoes." All the better class deplore what has happened and all are friendly to the Americans, as is the Government.

Medical School Closed.

The medical school has been closed for the time being, students and laborers blaming each other for the violence shown, and they are in hot discussion.

Some newspapers censure the police and say the authorities are far too drastic in putting down the troubles.

A circular issued yesterday, signed by various workingmen, calls on all workmen to boycott American stores, saloons, hotels, etc., and to refuse to have social relations with Americans. The funny part of this is that the Mexican workmen never do patronize American places of business and have no social relations with Americans under normal conditions. The circular is anonymous and is sold for five centavos. It will have no effect on American business here, even if the boycott is carried out.

RODRIGUEZ WAS AN AMERICAN

Wireless Message Believed to Be for Taft Says Man Lynched Was Not Mexican.

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 12.—A wireless message relating to the anti-American demonstrations in Mexico was received at the Government station here last night. The spark was lost before the signature was sent. The message reads:

"The editors of incendiary newspapers will be arrested. The embassy is vigorously protected.

"I am informed upon unquestionable authority that Anton Rodrigues was born in New Mexico and was an American citizen."

Anton Rodrigues was the man whose lynching in Texas is said to be the reason for the outbreak in Mexico. The editors referred to are probably those who were responsible for the printing of stories which incited the Mexicans.

The message is believed to have been sent by Secretary of State P. C. Knox to President Taft, who is now en route to Panama. Other messages to President Taft sent from the Key West station have been caught here.

TOLSTOI LEAVES HOME TO SPEND LIFE IN SOLITUDE

Great Russian Disappears, Taking Only His Physician With Him.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1910, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 12.—"Count Leo Tolstoi left his residence, Yasnaya Poliana, at 5 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 10 last.

"He was accompanied by his physician, Dr. Makovetsky, and neither has been heard of since.

"The Countess Tolstoi is in despair. In a letter to his wife Tolstoi says he has decided to pass his remaining days in solitary retirement."

Such is the remarkable telegram which the Novoe Vremya, a responsible newspaper, publishes today. The telegram is signed by Prince Driutri Obolensky, a well-known personage who sent it Tula. The news is confirmed from Moscow.

Tolstoi, the great Russian writer and social reformer, is in his eighty third year. He married the woman whom he has left 49 years ago. She has borne him many children.

Tolstoi has not been in good health for months. He suffered from bronchitis and inflammation of the liver. His temperature was up so high that his physicians despaired of saving him, but he recovered and has shown great mental activity since then.

A telegram from St. Petersburg, dated Oct. 14 last, stated that he had been suffering from fainting spells. It took six days at least, seemingly for news to reach St. Petersburg from Yasnaya Poliana.

SEARCHED FAR AND WIDE

Noted Invalid, Now in Lykins, Ky., Says That She Is In Better Health Than Ever Before.

"I have traveled far," writes Mrs. Martha Dingus, from this place, "in search of health. I doctored a great deal with a great many different doctors, but with little result.

"I have been a noted invalid for 20 years, for I had nearly every disease that my sex is heir to. But since using Cardui, I have been steadily improving. Though now 46 years old, I am in better health than I have been in 20 years.

"I give Cardui the credit for it, and feel it is my duty to inform you what Cardui has done for me."—Lykins, Ky.

The reason why Cardui is so exceptionally successful in relieving women's complaints, after other treatments fail, is that it is a woman's tonic—a strengthening remedy for women, made especially for women, from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and help nature to build up the womanly constitution. Not a strong, mineral mixture, but a mild, vegetable remedy, that cannot harm either young or old.

Your druggist will tell you that Cardui is just the remedy that you should try.

Will you do so?

STATUTE OF 1792 IS FOUND IN CHICAGO BEEF TRUST CASE

It Will Be Used in an Application for Change of Venue From Landis.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A rusty old statute of the vintage of 1792 was unearthed today by counsel representing the 10 Chicago millionaire packers under indictment for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and exhibited before Judge Landis in the United States District Court. On the validity of the old law an application for a change of venue to the United States Circuit Court and from Judge Landis' jurisdiction.

The statute upon which the request is based was passed May 8, 1792, and was amended in 1821. Prosecutors at the Federal Building declared that, as far as they knew, it never had been used before.

The charge is made that Judge Landis in 1895 as a special assistant District Attorney under Judge Harmon, then acting Attorney-General of the United States conducted an investigation to ascertain whether an alleged beef trust existed in Chicago. The records of Congress show that Judge Landis was appointed to conduct such an inquiry

SAWYER DENIES BRIDGE TOLL BODY HAS DECIDED TO QUIT

Rombauer Said It Would Disband, Chairman Says It Will Meet Monday.

Isaac H. Sawyer, chairman of the Joint Conference Committee on Abolition of the Bridge Arbitrary, told a Post-Dispatch reporter Saturday that no steps have been taken toward disbanding the committee. Edgar R. Rombauer, Speaker of the House of Delegates, in an address before the Railway Men's Club at the Southern Hotel Friday night, declared that the committee had failed to accomplish its purpose and would disband in a few days.

"We are to have a meeting of the committee Monday," said Mr. Sawyer. "The question of discontinuing the committee has not been discussed."

Speaker Rombauer predicted the defeat of the Manufacturers' Railway bill for building free bridge approaches. He declared the newspapers had hounded, vilified and blackguarded him.

NEW ORDINANCE PLANS TO MOVE SALOONS AWAY FROM SCHOOLS

Those Within 150 Feet Prohibited by Measure Introduced by Delegate Tausssig.

Many saloons will be forced to seek new quarters if the Municipal Assembly passes a bill forbidding the establishment of a dramshop within 150 feet of a public, private or parochial school, having an attendance of at least 100. The bill was introduced by Delegate Tausssig at the request of the Board of Education.

At present there are many saloons within the zone prohibited by the proposed ordinance. If the measure is adopted, the Excise Commissioner would be required to refuse the reissuance of licenses to these places.

The Board of Education has in recent years opposed the opening of a saloon within 200 feet of a public school, but has waived its objections to a dramshop which was in existence before this rule was made. Under the administration of Excise Commissioner Caulfield, the Board of Education protested against the establishment of a bar in the Olivia Building, opposite the Central High School. The license was later granted.

What is your chance among the competing millions of city workers?
No matter how hard you work, the barriers against you are almost impassable. Marketing is so expensive, rent is so high, that most men just make a bare living until they die. There's only one solution for you—turn to farming.
But turn in the right direction. Come to the Gulf Coast the richest region on the map, with the most delightful climate in the world—a section that offers all the conveniences to which you are accustomed—which will supply all your needs and yet leave you with a surplus at the end of the year.
C. C. Pugh of Mercedes paid for his farm with his first crop of onions.
He purchased a stretch of raw land, cleared it and planted Bermuda onions. His whole cost of growing, including crates, was 38 cents a bushel. He sold his product f. o. b. at $1.15 a bushel, making a net profit of $370 an acre.
The Gulf Coast has only begun its development; there is plenty of land to be had just like Mr. Pugh bought.
You can duplicate his success and not only make back your whole investment before the year is out, but live like a lord on the delicacies raised right in your own garden and put money in the bank to boot.
It won't cost you much to visit this country and judge for yourself. Every first and third Tuesday of each month you can purchase a round-trip Landseekers ticket to any point in the Gulf Coast country of Texas, from Chicago at $30.00, and from St. Louis or Kansas City at $25.00.
